Meetings are held regularly on every other Monday evening in Cupples I, usually the first and third Monday in the month. Programme consists of talks on engineering subjects by those members at each meeting, and a report by one member on current topics in engineering journals. Among the Alumni who spoke before the club during the last year are Messrs. W. G. Brenneke, '88, A. P. Greensfelder, '05, R. G. Alexander, '08, E. O. Sweetser, and Prof. G. T. Moore of the Shaw School of Botany.

Review of the Season

After the Hatchet went to press last year Thyrsus presented two plays, the first the annual melodrama in April, "The Girl from L Triangle Ranch," abounding in dynamite plots, kidnappings and shooting affrays, and ending in just retribution, villains and villainess falling dead in all directions as the curtain went down. Vaudeville specialties, including the world-renowned "Casey at the Bat," were introduced between the acts.

Then in June, Thyrsus had its part in the management of the musical comedy presented by the class of 1909, "The Official Chaperone," written by Fannie Hurst, who was for two years vice-president of Thyrsus.

The season of 1909-10 has been thus far the most successful, artistically and financially, in the history of the club. Thyrsus has continued the policy, begun last year, of gradually raising its standard both of plays produced and of members admitted. Up to the time of going to press, three plays have been presented in the Cupples Theatre.

The year opened brilliantly with an exceptionally clever presentation of Oscar Wilde's bright comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest," before two full houses. This play, by the very subtlety of its humor, required unusual delicacy of handling, but its demands were fully met by the cast.
"The Elopement of Ellen" was highly successful on account of the sunny, normal quality of plot and action, and the more than satisfactory handling of its exceptional opportunities for rich comedy. "The Elopement of Ellen," in plot and interpretation, was a play calculated to put an audience in a royally good humor and to send it away well satisfied with Thyrsus, and with the world.

"An American Citizen," presented in March, was undertaken with some misgivings. Written originally for Nat Goodwin, it was a bigger thing than the club had ever attempted in a monthly play, but Thyrsus' faith in itself was vindicated. Although the lines and business taxed the ability of the actors to the utmost, the cast presented a highly creditable production, and two packed houses received it with enthusiasm. "An American Citizen" abounds in richly humorous situations, which the cast improved to the fullest, and, on the other hand, in effective pantomime and intense scenes in which the actors showed more than amateur skill. Credit is due Mr. Joseph Solari for his assistance in both "The Elopement of Ellen" and "An American Citizen."

"Captain Lettarblair" was presented March 29th at the Odeon to a large and appreciative audience of friends and students of the University. This sparkling play, centering around the affairs of love and finance of a fascinating Irish captain, held the audience in the grip of suspense which forgot any personal interest in those who portrayed its roles, and remembered only the story unwinding on the stage before them. The play, swinging from grave to gay, from gay to grave again, carried the audience with it and left them captivated with every figure in the charming story, from the dashing captain to his devoted Jorkins.

Only hard and consistent effort on the part of the cast, directed and aided by Mr. Joseph Solari, the capable and talented coach, made possible so brilliant and satisfactory a production.

Only the annual melodrama remains on the program for the year, and there will doubtless be a repetition of the signal success that has attended every play thus far. If the interest in Thyrsus on the part of the student body continues to grow as it has done this year, next season should see a boom in dramatics that would justify the expansion of Thyrsus' facilities to meet the demands for space and equipment that cannot under present conditions be met. \textsc{Amy Starbuck.}

During the session of 1909-1910 a new constitution was adopted by the Society. Also two inter-collegiate debates were held, one with Missouri and one with Drury. The team which debated Missouri consisted of Mr. Brooks and Mr. Debatin, with Mr. Hermann and Mr. Lockwood as alternates. The team for the Drury debate had not been selected at the time of going to press.
