Shy she was, and I thought her cold.—Irma Rossman.
Oh, girls, I've just seen Gaston!—Dorothy Childs.
HYRSUS closed the season last May with "The Starry Flag", a melodrama as sentimentally mellow and as blood-curdlingly dramatic as anyone could wish. As leading lady, Miss Oehler made a very favorable impression with her dignified stage presence and her ability to portray emotion. Mr. Lohmann played the part of a brave young soldier very ably. The villain was heroically presented by Mr. Henry. Mr. Price and Miss Thuener in their Irish comedy roles played their parts in a whole hearted and spirited way.

In November "Mice and Men" was presented with great success. Miss Taylor made a charming Peggy, and captivated the audience as easily as she did the dashing Captain Lovell, played by Mr. Ralph Bryan. Mr. Robb, as Mark Embury, played the old man with much conviction. One of the prettiest parts of the play was the song "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose," that ran through it.

The next play was "Our Boys" presented in March. The two players that are especially to be commended are Mr. Raymond and Mr. Jackson, who presented the characters of Perkyn Middlewick, an uneducated English butterman, and Sir Geoffrey Chumpneys, a pompous member of the upper class. Mr. Denison’s work in the role of a blasé young Englishman, was consistently good. Mr. Henry impersonated the other hero with equal ability. Miss Warren and Miss De Courcy, as Violet and Mary Melrose, showed an easy stage presence and a sympathetic appreciation of their parts. Miss Thuener’s character work as Belinda, was highly commendable from her dishevelled appearance to her cockney accent.

“An Enemy of the People”

BSEN’S “An Enemy of the People,” the annual play chosen by Thyrsus this year, is beyond any question the most difficult production ever attempted in the history of the organization. However, contrary to the predictions of its adverse critics, the play was presented with great success at the Odeon on March 27, 1912. It was given with a professional sureness which has grown to be a definite characteristic of Thyrsus Annuals. Mr. Roessel’s hold of the leading part was surprising for so young an actor; his stage presence was easy, his voice particularly pleasing. And in spite of the heaviness of his part, he completely won the sympathy of the audience. We really felt the personality of Dr. Stockmann, a man of the highest ideals, and the noblest purposes. Mr. Roessel also played well to the other actors, especially in his fatherly attitude toward the children, and in his tenderness to his wife.

Mr. Smith as the stolid, obdurate Burgomaster showed an accurate conception of the part. One could tell that he and Dr. Stockmann were brothers, for one was as resolute of purpose as the other. His voice was very full and strong, and carried to the remotest corner of the house.

Mr. Green’s presentation of Aslaksen was sure and convincing from the start. On his first entry he struck the key-note of the timid, well-meaning printer of the “Messenger” and did not waver at any time. Mr. Carson played the part of the weak Hovstad with good interpretation. Mr. Thilenius, with his hearty laugh, was one of the light spots that brightened the rather sombre tone of Ibsen’s theme. Old Morten Kiil was very successfully played by Mr. Lockwood, who tottered on the stage, and spoke in such a quavering voice as to make this difficult character seem very natural. Mr. McCarthy’s portrayal of Captain Horster, the sole friend of the distressed family, while it was not very striking, possessed a commendable genuineness.

The women in the play, although not very prominent, were played in a manner which clearly demonstrated the dramatic ability of Miss West and Miss Wenzel. Miss West, as Mrs. Stockmann, presented a sympathetic grasp of the character. At no time did she lose her gentleness, her sympathy, and her love for her family. Her work with Mr. Roessel was particularly realistic. Miss Wenzel with her usual sure and clean-cut acting, showed a stage presence born of much experience, and played her part of the spirited, independent Petra in a fearless manner. Her voice, bearing, and interpretation marked her part as a strong and finished piece of acting.

Who thinks too little and who talks too much.—Captain.

Series I. The Record, issued monthly from November to May, consists of Chronicle numbers and High School Magazine numbers. The Chronicle is issued in alternate months, beginning with November. It contains a resume of the principal activities of the University for the period covered, and announcements of important future events. The High School Magazine is designed primarily to give prospective students a closer insight into the intellectual and material resources of the University, as well as a view of its student life.

Series II. In the Bulletin series are issued the Catalogues, the Literary and Scientific Number, the Medical Number, and the Annual Review.
