HISTORY OF THE MEDICAL CENTER

Washington University School of Medicine was formed in 1899 by the union of the St. Louis Medical College and the Missouri Medical College, both of which had operated successfully as separate institutions for nearly fifty years.

In 1910 new heads and staffs were appointed in all major departments in an extensive reorganization and development of the School, and in 1914 the Medical School moved to the present Kingshighway site. Robert A. Barnes Hospital, St. Louis Children’s Hospital, and the Medical School then comprised the Medical Center.

The St. Louis Maternity Hospital became affiliated with the group and constructed the present building in 1927. In 1945 the St. Louis Maternity Hospital became the property of the University. In 1931 the McMillan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, provided by the bequest of Mrs. Eliza McMillan, and the Oscar Johnson Institute, the gift of several donors, were erected by the University. The Edward Mallinckrodt Radiological Institute, the gift of Mr. Mallinckrodt and his son, was built in 1931 and has since provided X-ray services for the whole group.

The affiliation of the hospitals, the Washington University Clinics, and the institutes with the School of Medicine, and their location together make this group of institutions integral parts of the teaching program. Each hospital contains classrooms and laboratories used by students and staffs.

By the terms of the affiliations, the faculty of the School constitutes the professional staffs of these hospitals as well as of the University Clinics. The Clinics serve as outpatient departments of the hospitals.

The School is located at the eastern edge of Forest Park in St. Louis, and is served by three different bus and street car lines to various parts of the city. The campus of Washington University is at the opposite edge of the Park.
HOSPITAL AFFILIATIONS

Washington University School of Medicine is affiliated with the following institutions in St. Louis:

Barnes Hospital—425 beds, half of which are used for undergraduate teaching in medicine and surgery, with services also for gynecology; conducts a central diagnostic laboratory.

McMillan Hospital—for eye, ear, nose, and throat, operated as a division of Barnes Hospital, contains 150 beds for services of ophthalmology, and otolaryngology, provides separate section for neuropsychiatric and special medical patients.

Oscar Johnson Institute—occupies five floors of the Oscar Johnson building, houses research and teaching laboratories for departments of ophthalmology, otolaryngology, medicine, and neuropsychiatry.

St. Louis Children's Hospital—200 beds, contains laboratories for the department of pediatrics.

St. Louis City Hospitals—used for both undergraduate and graduate teaching. The Medical School nominates the staffs for one division of City Hospital (1,037 beds), of the Malcolm Bliss Psychopathic Institute, and of the Homer G. Phillips Hospital (680 beds). The Isolation Hospital (now used for chronic diseases) and the City Sanitarium (for mental diseases) are used for study and teaching of these subjects.

St. Louis Maternity Hospital—quarters for 100 mothers and corresponding facilities for the new-born; 37 beds for gynecology; provides headquarters and laboratories for the department of obstetrics and gynecology.

Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children—used for instruction, 100 beds.

Koch Hospital—used for instruction in tuberculosis.

The Jackson Johnson Regional Scholarships have been established to enable young men and women with superior qualifications and promise for a career in medicine to come to Washington University, without regard to their financial circumstances.
Eligibility. Jackson Johnson Regional Scholarships are open to those who plan to enter the freshman class at Washington University School of Medicine or to transfer from a two-year medical school to the third-year class at Washington University. The candidate must have resided for three years before application in one of the specified Regions, and have completed premedical work, or the first two years of medicine in the same Region.

Stipend. Since the Jackson Johnson Regional Scholarships are regarded as prizes to be competed for by all students, whatever their financial need, the stipends will vary with the financial resources of the students. In those cases in which there is not financial need, a scholarship without stipend will be awarded. The maximum stipend will be $1,200 a year.

Selection. The awards will be made by the Committee on Admissions and Scholarships with the approval of the Chancellor on the basis of the academic record in college or medical school, the score in the medical aptitude and other tests, the recommendations of professors and others concerning ability, character, qualities of leadership, and general all-round development, and the extracurricular activities both in and outside of the School.

Renewals. Awards may be renewed with the same or different stipends, for the succeeding years of the medical course, provided the achievements of the scholar justify the continuance of the award. The School may withdraw a Jackson Johnson Regional Scholarship if at any time the student's record or his actions in the School or outside prove him unworthy of it.

Application. An application for a Jackson Johnson Regional Scholarship may be made at the same time or subsequent to application for admission to the School of Medicine. In any instance, all applications for a Jackson Johnson Regional Scholarship must be completed by January 1 for the classes beginning the following September.

JACKSON JOHNSON FELLOWSHIPS. In order to provide opportunities for able and promising young men and women, three Jackson Johnson Fellowships in the Preclinical Sciences will be offered annually.

Eligibility. All applicants must be graduates of a recognized school of medicine, and acceptable for admission to the School of Graduate Studies of Washington University as candidates for a doctoral degree. Preference will be given to those who expect to pursue an academic career in one of the preclinical sciences.
Stipend. The stipend will vary with the needs and ability of the individual to a maximum of $2,000 a year for the first year.

Renewal. Awards may be renewed with the same or different stipends for not to exceed, in all, three years, provided the achievements of the fellow justify continued study.

Application. All applications should be completed by March 1 for the period beginning the following July or September. Awards will be announced about April 1.

A Fellowship in Neurological Surgery with a stipend of $1,200 per year is awarded on recommendation of the Department of Surgery. Candidates must be graduates in medicine who will have completed an internship.

A Memorial Fellowship with a stipend of $500 may be awarded for one year to a graduate of the School, preferably a woman, for postgraduate study.

The George F. Gill Scholarship, instituted in memory of a former Clinical Professor of Pediatrics, entitles the holder to remission of the tuition fee to the amount of $100.

Comstock, the annual income from $12,000 is used for two scholarships for students who otherwise would be unable to obtain a medical education and who desire and intend to follow the practice of medicine and surgery.

The Joseph H. Roblee Scholarships. Provided through the gift of Mrs. Roblee, the income from the Joseph H. Roblee Scholarship Endowment Fund of $12,000 maintains two scholarships. They are awarded by the Chancellor to qualified, worthy, and deserving students in any division of the University.
