O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise unto the Rock of our salvation.

Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving: and make a joyful noise unto Him with psalms.

Psalm 95: 1-2
FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

With the cold stormy blasts of the November wind that start shivers chasing each other down our spines and the brilliant hued leaves fluttering to our feet, we know that Thanksgiving Day will soon be descending upon us. This is the one truly American holiday that had its humble beginning with our forefathers and has maintained its original meaning and thought down through the ages. Our ancestors fought many battles to make a stand in a free world and, with their determination and brave spirit, they withstood the cold blustery winter, Indians and their war parties, famine, and all of the many things that came between them and their desire for freedom. In spite of all the adverse situations which they encountered, they still had faith to set aside this one day for worship, feasting, and to give thanks to their Creator for the bountiful harvest of the season and for the courage to withstand all enemies.

Each year offers us a little more for which to be thankful and there is not one person today who cannot be grateful for some blessing received during the past year. Our forefathers showed their ap-

GOPHER AWARD PRESENTED

Dr. Lillian Storms Coover, Ames, Iowa, has received the Marjorie Hulsizer Copher Award for 1954. The highest honor in the field of dietetics, the award is given in recognition of distinguished service to the profession.

Dr. Coover was honored Friday evening, October 29, in Philadelphia at the banquet which closed the 37th Annual Meeting of the American Dietetic Association. The presentation was made by Grace Bulman, President of the Association in 1953-54.

For 15 years the nutritionist in charge of research for the Gerber Products Company, Dr. Coover is now its nutrition consultant. She was at one time an instructor in the chemistry department of Iowa State College and was an assistant professor in the home science department at the University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand. She introduced the first Graduate courses in nutrition there.

Long an active member of the American Dietetic Association, Dr. Coover has served in many capacities, culminated by the presidency in 1951-52. While living in Michigan, she served as treasurer and president of the Michigan Association.

The Marjorie Hulsizer Copher Award was first presented in 1945, honoring the memory of Mrs. Copher, a dietitian who was distinguished for her service in World War I. She was decorated by King George V of England and by the French Government. Mrs Copher was one of the first to introduce the comparatively new profession of dietetics into the British Army.

This annual award is made possible through anonymous gifts to the Board of Trustees of Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, Mo., where Mrs. Copher was chief dietitian for a number of years after her service overseas.

PERSONALITY OF THE MONTH

Mrs. Anna Bolm is the lady sitting at the information desk in Barnes Lobby from 7:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. During these hours she is the first person that a visitor sees upon entering the hospital. Perhaps that is the reason that soft-spoken and even-tempered Mrs. Bolm was chosen for this position, for not everyone has the knack for answering hundreds of questions every day without losing his patience.

Mrs. Bolm was born and grew up in St. Louis and later attended Brown Business School. She is married and the mother of three children. Mr. Bolm is an accountant with the Old Judge Coffee Company. Prior to joining our staff, Mrs. Bolm had been a housewife for twenty years, but had kept up her typing. She saw an advertisement for an admitting clerk at Barnes Hospital, applied for the position and was employed. That was in April of 1951, and Mrs. Bolm held that position until March 16, 1952, when she was transferred to the information desk.

The month of November serves a very noble and important purpose. It never passes without calling our attention to a significant part of our great American heritage. We are reminded that gratitude should have a place in the life structure of every individual, and that it should be given a chance to find expression in daily living. In addition to that, we are reminded of the conditions which gave birth to the variety of gratitude which produced our first Thanksgiving observance. We are familiar with this part of our history, but like many other human events that we know it still carries a freshness of interest to all who review it.

It is difficult to find a person who is entirely void of some sense of gratitude. After all, it seems that we differ in the matter of degree when it comes to our ability to understand and express the spirit of Thanksgiving that was brought into being by our forefathers of long ago. It is largely a personal matter to decide upon our own degree of gratitude. Our environments have not been the same, we are not surrounded by the same material possessions and it is easy to find by comparison that we have not all enjoyed the same good fortunes. These make good excuses for our differences of attitude when Thanksgiving comes around each year, but actually they are not very good reasons to lean upon from year to year throughout a lifetime. Such a practice could become rather monotonous.

Regardless of what we might think or say about it, another day of Thanksgiving observance is ours to possess. It is to spend as much of her free time as possible listening to music and dancing. She frequently attends a concert and likes very much to travel. Miss Cabranes says that she is enjoying her stay here and finds everyone in St. Louis very friendly and helpful. We hope that she will find the rest of her visit as pleasant and will have many enjoyable memories to carry back with her to Puerto Rico where she will become the first government woman hospital administrator.

CAPPING CEREMONY HELD FOR STUDENT NURSES

On November 12, the Graham Memorial Chapel of Washington University was the scene of the capping of twenty-three students of the School of Nursing, Class of June, 1954. When a student nurse receives her cap, it indicates that she has successfully completed five months of preclinical training. Miss Louise Knapp, Director of the School of Nursing, presented the caps to the students.

Following the solemn ceremony, an informal reception for the students and their families was held in the lounge of the nurses' residence.
