The United Fund at Barnes Hospital begins Oct. 1, with the goal set at $60,021. Barnes campaign chairman, Rex Ward, has been working closely with campaign drive "captains" to prepare for an intensive two-week drive during which all hospital employees will be solicited to make their "Fair Share" pledge. The United Fund supports more than 100 full-time health, rehabilitation, family service, youth, and planning agencies in the metropolitan St. Louis area.

Mr. Ward has talked to various hospital management personnel meetings and will meet with personnel from each department prior to and during the drive. He said that he hopes the campaign drive can be completed during the first two weeks of October, which is United Fund Month. The theme for the drive is "The Gift That Gets It Done."

A movie, prepared and distributed each year by the United Fund, is expected to be shown several times during the drive. Constance Barton, director of public relations at the hospital and a former "loaned executive" for the United Fund, appears briefly in the movie. Times and places for showing of the movie will be announced shortly by Mr. Ward.

Bill Sullivan Tops 1,000 Volunteer Hours

The presentation of a 1,000 volunteer hours pin to Bill Sullivan of University City highlighted the annual Junior Volunteer Awards party held Sept. 6 at the Pet, Inc., building near Busch Memorial Stadium.

Following the awards ceremonies, junior volunteers and their families were guests of the St. Louis Cardinal Baseball Club at a game in Busch Stadium.

A welcome to the junior volunteers and members of their families was extended by Rich Grisham, an assistant director of the hospital; Mrs. Stanley P. Kolker, president of the Barnes Auxiliary; and Ms. Catherine Beyer, director of volunteers. First-year bars were presented to 112 volunteers; 52 received 100-hour pins; five received three-year bars; two received four-year bars; and five received 300 hour caps.

Top award recipient, Bill Sullivan, has volunteered approximately 1200 hours to Barnes since 1972 and participates in the junior volunteer program on a year-round basis. The award was presented by Mr. Grisham. Pam Roberts of Normandy, Mo., received a 500-hour pin.

Mr. Sullivan is a member of the Explorer Post at Barnes Hospital and wants to become a doctor. He has worked as an orderly in the emergency room and in the operating room areas.

Eight junior volunteers told of their work at the hospital: Mary Maricic and Cheryl Stroud work in the recovery room; Kris Heitman, courtesy cart; Beth Immer, floating duties; Cathy Fedchak and Susan Ellebracht, respiratory therapy; Lori Davidson, nurse volunteer; and Greg Randle, laboratory.

Presentation of awards was made by Mrs. Jack Lupher, chairman of the junior volunteer program; Mrs. John Bachmann, chairman of the volunteer service committee; and by committee members Mrs. Robert Erickson, Mrs. Gerald Canatsey and Mrs. William J. Savage.

Counseling Originator Dies Of Heart Disease

Fred Zemelman, a coronary patient who initiated a program of counseling Barnes patients who had had heart attacks, died Aug. 5 of complications of his own heart problems.

As a former heart attack victim, Mr. Zemelman volunteered to visit persons who were in the Barnes Coronary Care Unit, to allay fears, misconceptions and exaggerations which patients may have about their illness. Because he had undergone some of the same anxieties, and had been in the Barnes unit for three weeks in 1969, Mr. Zemelman felt there was a need to speak with patients on a personal, one-to-one basis.

He discussed his proposal with the unit's director and made plans for its implementation. For the next two years, until ill health forced him to stop, Mr. Zemelman was a regular visitor to the Unit. As he once explained his goal, "If by telling my story I can inspire others to enjoy life to the fullest instead of living in fear, then I feel that my efforts are not wasted."

The program he started at Barnes quickly won the approval of the St. Louis Heart Association and has been emulated in other hospitals. It is being carried on here by Mrs. Marshall Webster, a former heart patient who usually visits the Coronary Care Unit twice a week.

Rowland Reelected Board Chairman

Raymond E. Rowland, chairman of the board of directors of Barnes Hospital, has been reelected chairman of the board of directors of Washington University Medical Center.

Mr. Rowland's reelection took place during the medical center board's annual meeting held in early September. Dr. Samuel B. Guze, medical center president, announced at the meeting that more than $285 million in new buildings and renovations was completed in the medical center last year and that more than $5.4 million in free patient care was provided.

The meeting was highlighted by a review of the proposed redevelopment of a 36-block area surrounding the medical center and it was announced that a plan detailing land use within the redevelopment area will soon be submitted to the St. Louis Board of Aldermen. Also reviewed were advances in technology and medical care within the medical center.

"The future of the medical center," Dr. Guze said, "continues to rest on its ability to attract bright inquiring scholars whose ideas and work create the sense of academic excitement that reflects innovative approaches to research and clinical practice."

Today's Best Buy—The United Fund

Dear Employee:

October is United Fund campaign time at Barnes. Our goal, $60,021, is realistic and attainable if we each examine our conscience as well as our paycheck and give what we truly believe is a Fair Share.

Inflation has hit everyone this year, but amid whatever problems we may have with the rising cost of living, we at Barnes can pause to count our blessings and be thankful that we each have a job and can give a Fair Share to help those to whom 1974 has been less kind.

Despite inflation, the economy of the United Fund is well known: 93¢ out of every dollar collected goes directly to the agencies. And those 100 UF agencies continue to get their money's worth too. For example, only $50 a week provides a week of protection for a child who has been abused, exploited or neglected. Working in a hospital, many of us have seen these battered children and experienced a pang in our own hearts. Sharing our better fortune with them by contributing only $50 a week to remove them from a life of abuse and neglect will let us walk a little taller and feel a little better.

This is just one example. The young, the handicapped, the sick, the elderly, the unfortunate are looking to us for help. When you are filling out your pledge card, remember these thousands who are depending on your help, and remember, too, that your United Fund gift is the gift that gets it done.

Sincerely,

Robert E. Frank
President, Barnes Hospital

"Granny" Powell Retires

Persons throughout the United States have seen Gladys "Granny" Powell who retired Sept. 2 after more than 22 years as a member of the nursing service staff at Barnes Hospital.

Although Mrs. Powell hasn't traveled all over the country, her picture has. Her photograph is part of the nurse recruitment booth which is taken to nurses' conventions and meetings through the U.S. Many persons who visit the booth have commented on the "sweet, little white-haired woman."

"Granny" was guest of honor at a "surprise" party in her honor held Aug. 23 in 1200 classroom. Mae DuBois, unit manager of 4400 where "Granny" has worked for the past few years, hoped the party would be a surprise. But somehow the news leaked out.

The large cake prepared by the dietetics department and a money tree containing almost $80 were both surprises, however. "Granny," well-known for her quick wit and sharp quips, said "Well, now I guess I can pay the rent this month." Many of Mrs. Powell's friends at the hospital shared the party with her, and John Warmbrodt, vice president of the hospital, presented her with a service certificate. She began work at Barnes in June of 1952.

She was supervisor of the ER for 18 years before working on three McMil- lan and on 4400 when the East Pavilion was occupied. While working as the ER supervisor, "Granny" was the "star" of a movie made in the facility. The film was a segment for a national police department film on emergency care.

A native of Irondale, Mo., Mrs. Powell has lived in St. Louis for 50 years. For four years she was night supervisor of the city contagion facility during which she endured the 1935 meningitis epidemic. She is a graduate of the St. Louis Teaching School for Nurses and was a private duty nurse for 15 years.

During retirement, "Granny" plans to travel, catch up on her reading and follow the baseball Cardinals, hopefully to the World Series. "I'll go if we get in the series," she said.

Two Resident Chaplains Begin Hospital Work

Two resident chaplains have joined the Barnes chaplains department according to the Rev. Robert Davis, chaplain supervisor. The chaplain residents are Sister Dolores Pelletier and the Rev. Lou Hoger.

Sister Dolores and Mr. Hoger will be at Barnes for one year as students of Advanced Clinical Pastoral Education and at the end of the year they will qualify to become "Fellows" in the College of Chaplains.
Once upon a time... there were two employees at Barnes Hospital who didn't want to give to the United Fund campaign. One, S. Ken Flint, put it this way. "Sure, I know they need the money for these hundred agencies. But, this year, I need the money myself, and more than ever before. Why, my gas bills have gone up 100 per cent. I've bought a few stocks, and they're way down, I've lost money. I just can't see my way clear to donate, even if it is a good cause."

The other employee, Ms. Penny Pinscher, agreed with her fellow worker, S. Ken. "Wow. You should see prices at the supermarket. This is no time to be giving money to others!"

But Ken and Penny were thoughtful people. They listened when United Fund campaign captains in their departments came up and asked them to give to the United Fund. Ken had a lot of questions. "Why can't these various agencies raise the money they need on their own when they need it?" He learned that it costs money to raise money. The United Appeal type of drive, with only one staff, costs less.

Penny asked her captain, "Why can't the federal government take over most of these causes?" Her captain said, "Aren't your taxes high enough already?" That made Penny stop and consider. She remembered the work of many agencies, such as the Visiting Nurse Association and the Red Cross, and their work with Barnes to help our patients.

"Okay," said Ken. "I'll give. But you can't expect me to increase my pledge over last year. Think of my bills!" His captain pointed out that, just as Ken's bills have gone up, so have the costs for the health, welfare, and youth service agencies served by the United Fund. "Your salary went up last year," Ken's captain reminded him. "But you don't want to give the UF agencies a raise? Think it over. How can they do the job if they can't have more money to cover higher expenses?"

Well, by this time, Ken and Penny weren't so sure that they would feel right about not supporting the United Fund. Penny was a bit doubtful about payroll deduction. Her captain assured her that she didn't have to make her pledge that way. "Ms. Pinscher, let me explain another thing. Did you know that a pledge of a mere dollar per paycheck provides a week's protection service for a child who has been abused, exploited or neglected?"

That made Penny think. She'd seen a few of these children who had come to Barnes for treatment. Her heart had gone out to these small victims. She learned that a pledge of $2.40 a pay period will maintain an indigent elderly person in a pleasant nursing home for a week. And Penny knew that older people sometimes leave the hospital without relatives at home to help them over the convalescent period.

"Okay," said Penny, whipping out her pen. "I'll do it. And because I want to really feel good, I'll give my fair share. Then I'll know that I've done my part."

Ken had decided to give, but... his fair share? He remembered that there was one agency he just couldn't quite feel right about helping to support... And, what about all those other drives, the people who come to the house, and so forth?

Then Ken learned that when he makes his pledge he can ask that his money go just to the agencies he specifies. These agencies will receive a letter from the United Fund saying they were specifically named by Ken to receive his gift. And, he was told that while many agencies with individual drives are worthwhile, it is well to know the facts about their needs, their administration costs, and so forth, before making a contribution. He was informed that all United Fund agency budgets are carefully reviewed by ten citizen-staffed panels of the United Fund. All agencies operate under the Uniform Standards of Financial Accounting for voluntary health and welfare agencies.

"Hey, you know what?" said S. Ken Flint, "I think I get the most mileage out of my charity dollar when I give to the United Fund. More of it goes to help the people I want to help, right here in the greater St. Louis area. The people I see around me that need it. And, none of it is wasted on unnecessary fund raising costs. Yes sir, I'll allocate a fair share pledge and I'll be satisfied all year that I'm carrying my share of living in our community."

And with that, Ken and Penny signed up to be fair share givers and lived happily all year.

Moral: Give your fair share and feel super.

THE END
Oral Surgery Service Begins At Barnes

Dr. John Delfino, who directs the new oral surgery service at Barnes, expected the service to be busy when it began this summer but response to the service and to the oral surgery clinic has exceeded his expectations.

“We didn’t expect the service to grow as quickly as it has,” Dr. Delfino said. “On the first morning our clinic was open we only saw a couple of patients.” He said that response to the new service has caused clinic hours to be extended and the clinic, located on the second floor of the Wohl Clinics building, is now open Monday afternoons, Wednesday mornings, Thursday afternoons and Friday mornings.

This is the first time that Barnes Hospital and the medical school have provided an oral surgery service, clinic and coverage through the hospital emergency room facilities. Dr. Delfino said that more than 100 emergency room calls were answered through the middle of August. The emergency room coverage and consultations with other physicians is provided on a 24-hour a day, seven-day a week basis.

Dr. Delfino, who joined the Barnes staff last October, had his training in oral surgery at Bellevue Hospital in New York, and for four years was on the staff at Temple University Medical Center in Philadelphia.

Other members of the oral surgery service here are Dr. James Giglio, assistant oral surgeon, who is supervising the training program for oral surgery residents; Dr. Leroy Peterson, associate dentist; and Dr. Allen Sclaroff, oral surgery resident.

A new intern is expected to be added to the training program each of the next three years so that four will be in the program at one time, Dr. Delfino said. The residents also will spend time in other hospital areas such as pathology, radiation oncology, plastic surgery, internal medicine and general anesthesia.

The oral surgery service provides treatment for dental problems ranging from a simple toothache to fractures and treatment of facial trauma. The service also provides a biopsy service for medical screening.

Oral surgery is performed in the Barnes operating rooms. Operations originally were scheduled only for Tuesday mornings but the number of operations has increased to the point that operations are now performed at different times throughout the week.

Emergency room care is provided in cases where there is damage to the teeth or jaw, Dr. Delfino said.

The oral surgery service number is 361-4700, extension 206, and is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Dr. Sclaroff, the oral surgery house officer, may be reached through the beeper system.

Doctor’s Notes

Dr. Thomas B. Ferguson, Barnes surgeon, has been named as one of two co-chairmen of the physicians section for the 1974-75 United Fund campaign. He will help coordinate activity to solicit physicians in the St. Louis area.

Dr. James Weaver, a former resident at Barnes Hospital, has joined the pathology department at University of Mississippi School of Medicine.

Dr. Charles Eyermann, a member of the Barnes staff since 1920, died Aug. 31. He was 85 years old and was a physician emeritus at Barnes at the time of his death. Dr. Eyermann was an allergy specialist and retired completely from his medical practice in 1969.

The President’s Office reports the following physicians on staff: Dr. Wallace B. Mendelson and Dr. John T. Biggs, assistant psychiatrists; Dr. Keith A. Hruska, assistant physician, all effective Aug. 1; Dr. Robert M. Taxman, assistant physician, effective Sept. 1; and Dr. Paul F. Palmberg, assistant ophthalmologist; Dr. Jacob Klein and Dr. Fernando Arias, assistant obstetrician-gynecologists, all effective July 1.

Three assistant pediatricians have been named associate pediatricians. They are Dr. Lawrence I. Kahn, Dr. Virginia Weldon and Dr. Richard E. Marshall.
An “Open Line” program in which employees can ask questions, express opinions or make suggestions will go into effect as employees receive letters at home from hospital President Robert E. Frank.

Employees are urged to use the “Open Line” forms to communicate with Mr. Frank, who said that all signed letters will be answered and that replies will be mailed to the employee’s home. Letters of general interest may be published in the Barnes Hospital Bulletin with permission of the letter writer. All information and names will be held in strict confidence when requested by the writer.

Mr. Frank said the establishment of the “Open Line” program should enable all employees to communicate with the hospital administration and know they will be given personal attention.

Graduation

Seventy-six men and women received diplomas Aug. 24 during graduation ceremonies for the Barnes Hospital School of Nursing. The school’s seventeenth graduation was held in the St. Louis Cathedral.

Graduates were in the second class to complete the school’s two-year curriculum and are members of the class of 1972. The last three-year class of nurses graduated last summer. More than half of this year’s graduates will be joining Barnes’ nursing service staff.

Joan Hrubetz, director of the school, said the past year was highlighted by an accreditation review of the school by the National League of Nursing which resulted in the school’s accreditation being extended six years.

Jack Pennington, instructor of microbiology at Forest Park Community College, gave the graduation address. He was introduced by Barnes President Robert E. Frank.

Mr. Frank presented the Copher Award, a cash gift made possible by a gift from a former Barnes surgeon, the late Dr. Glover Copher, to Karen Miller of Mehville, Mo. The cash award is given annually to the student demonstrating outstanding academic achievement and contributions to the school.

Members of the class from St. Louis County are: Mary Ruggles, Jennings; Mary Ann Duffy, Patricia Foley, Joan Hart, Linda Keesen, Florissant; Thomas Segbers, Cheryl Schuermann, Afton; Jeanne Smith, St. Ann; Beverly Stahlhut, Bridgeton; Susan Sullivan, Lynn Wallace, Ballwin; and Jacquelyn Brasher, University City.

Vicki Piel, Nancy Kilburn, Maplewood; Karen Margulis, Gary Nitz, Berkeley; Karen Miller, Mehville; Dominique Molt, Brentwood; Angela Orso, Ferguson; Theresa Parker, Debra Preusser, Normandy; and Joan Wienstroer, Bellefontaine Neighbors.

Outstate Missouri graduates are: Brenda Jackson, Sandra Gele, St. Charles; Richard Cobb, Ste. Genevieve; Rachael Davis, Neosho; Maureen McShane, Springfield; Mary Otto, Cape Girardeau; Nancy Pinson, Oak Ridge; and Kathleen Farrar, Gerald.

Illinois graduates are: Williamien Allen, Amy Lamb, Nellie Millican, East St. Louis; Sheryl Benson, Caseyville; Cynthia Boyer, Oakland; Cindy Dalley, Decatur; Pamela Dick, Tuscola; Debra Esch, Washington; Alyse Ferrero, Virden; and Beverly Francis, Patricia Sedig, Toni Stout, Granite City.

Charlene Fulton, Toni Thompson, Collinsville; Debra Harold, Herscher; Janet Hinchcliffe, O’Fallon; Denise Hower, Shelbyville; Jo Ellen Ingram, Toledo; Maureen Murphy, Belleville; Kathleen Quain, Cahokia; Edna Rensing, New Baden; and Jean Scott, Monticello.

Graduates from other states are: Nancy Cassidy, Alexandria, Va.; Gregory Duryea, Bird City, Kan.; Michelle Lemming, Beverly Reynolds, Dayton, Ohio; and Corrine Sullivan, Royal Oak, Mich.

Former Nearly New Chairman Dies Sept. 6

Mrs. Eleanor Bemberg, wife of Kurt Bemberg, Barnes chief engineer, died of cancer at Barnes Sept. 6. Mrs. Bemberg was a life member of the Barnes Hospital Auxiliary.

At the time of her death, Mrs. Bemberg was chairman of the auxiliary’s “Reach to Recovery” program in which women who have had cancer of the breast visit patients at Barnes who have the same disease. She was the organizer of the program.

Mrs. Bemberg, a member of the Auxiliary since 1968, served the organization as recording secretary and also had been chairman of the Nearly New shop.

Mrs. Stanley P. Kolker, president of the auxiliary, said that Mrs. Bemberg was “a very dedicated auxiliary member who volunteered her time and efforts eagerly.”

Administrative Intern Joins Barnes Staff

Gary Bartelt, a native of Quincy, Ill., recently began work as an administrative resident in the president’s office at Barnes Hospital.

Mr. Bartelt is a 1968 graduate of Quincy (Ill.) College with a degree in business management and previously was a credit analyst for Moorman Manufacturing Co. in Quincy. He is a recent graduate of the Washington University School of Medicine health care administration program.

Hospital Happenings

Ninety units of blood were donated by Barnes personnel during the Red Cross bloodmobile visit Sept. 5. In addition, 18 prospective donors were deferred until a later date. Bill Davis, who is coordinating the bloodmobile visits to Barnes, said that 35 persons donated blood at the hospital for the first time. The next bloodmobile visit will be Dec. 11.

Personnel Health is offering free smallpox vaccinations to hospital employees requesting inoculation. The U.S. Public Health Service and the Missouri State Board of Health both advise hospital employees receive the vaccinations every three to five years.

Flu shots are now available for any Barnes Hospital employee who wishes to receive them. The shots will be given in Personnel Health on the ground floor of Rand Johnson.

Mrs. Ava Ward has joined the Barnes Hospital staff as assistant director of volunteers. She will work with both adult and junior volunteers on weekends and later will have responsibility in night volunteer work when that program begins. Mrs. Ward has four children and four grandchildren.

Gladys Jennings, acting chairman of the department of foods and nutrition at Washington State University, in Pullman, Wash., recently visited Barnes Hospital taking slides to use in an audio-visual presentation in classes at the University. Slides were taken of dietetic interns and their work at the hospital.

Martha Ramsey, coordinator of forms control, has been designated national chairperson of the ad hoc committee on forms specifications of the Business Forms Management Association. The designation was made by Dr. G. Jay Christensen, president of the association.

Father Robert Krawinkel, Catholic chaplain at Barnes, recently represented Barnes at the American Health Congress. He was chairman of a committee discussing standards for chaplaincy services quality in hospitals and nursing homes.
