On the cover

Moving toward a target completion date in September, construction continues on the Hospital’s 577-space Parking Deck. This project marks the initial phase of The Jewish Hospital Expansion Program for Excellence in Health Care.
The sounds of hammers pounding and drills droning harmonize in a symphony of cacophonous music that accompanies the process of bringing into reality a structure long planned on paper.

The sounds of construction ring out on Parkview Place, adjacent to the Hospital’s Yalem Research Building, where the Jewish Hospital Parking Deck is being built. The parking facility is a long-awaited boon which will help alleviate the parking shortage now facing Hospital visitors. Upon completion of the deck, a new Hospital entrance will be constructed, allowing visitors to enter the Hospital directly from the well-lighted, guard-patrolled parking deck.

This initial phase of the Expansion Program for Excellence in Health Care is expected to be completed by its target date in September, at which time the facility will open containing parking spaces for 571 cars.

Ceremonies last September, to the scooping out of earth that was formerly the Physician’s Parking Lot, the parking deck structure grows by levels of steel scaffolding, looking much like giant webbing. After concrete is poured and the level completed, another rises above it quickly, and the process repeats itself.

All the while, construction is going on in another area in Jewish Hospital. Renovation is being carried out in the Adult Psychiatry Division on Division 5 Steinberg. Here, modernization of patient rooms is in progress as is construction of new patient lounge facilities.

The construction going on at the Hospital has been dubbed “Operation Progress,” because an analogous situation exists between it and a surgical procedure. Both are performed to benefit people yet both carry with them temporary side effects.

In the case of Jewish Hospital’s “Operation Progress,” temporary inconveniences are present, yet visitors and patients realizing that the benefits will follow shortly are sure to bear with us until the construction is completed.
ASSOCIATES’ ANNUAL MEETING

Dr. William Danforth Discusses ‘Role Of Jewish Hospital’

“What is the current role of Jewish Hospital now and in the future? What is the justification for its support and having it part of the Medical Center?” were questions posed and answered by Dr. William H. Danforth, Vice Chancellor for Medical Affairs at the Washington University School of Medicine, during his address at the third Annual Meeting of The Associates.

In speaking on “Jewish Hospital, the Medical Center and the Region,” Dr. Danforth noted that since the Jewish Hospital Association was formed in 1891 to “afford medical and surgical aid, comfort and relief to the deserving and needy Israelites,” times and circumstances have changed dramatically. “In 1971 the role of Jewish Hospital is not so simple. Its goal or rather its goals are multiple and its contributions are many and varied.

“In 1971, despite the changes and circumstances, Jewish Hospital continues to serve. It serves the entire St. Louis community and serves it well. In my opinion, in this time this hospital has become one of St. Louis’ great institutions. It is a nationally recognized Hospital, draws gifted medical people from all over the country to this community, to live here, to do research and to take care of the sick,” he said.

Continuing, Dr. Danforth said that another major change is that “Jewish Hospital no longer stands only by itself. It has become part of a great medical center which includes Barnes, Barnard, Central Institute for the Deaf, St. Louis Childrens, Washington University and the Medical School of Washington University.”

In examining the contributions of Jewish Hospital, Dr. Danforth discussed five major services, the premier role being that of a first-rate general hospital. “In Jewish Hospital patients can receive some of the best health care in the world.

“More than that,” he continued, “we have the benefit of groups of physicians working together in a teaching medical center. The latest research results are known and are available to be put in practice at the bedside, to bring the most modern and the best care imaginable. The attitude of the physicians that is fostered here in this medical center, is one of being critical and questioning. This kind of exciting, intellectual format is what develops excellent physicians and paramedical personnel, who can give to you and others who come as patients, the very best of medical care.

“’We have, in addition to those physicians who are practicing, a large number of very competent, highly specialized physicians, who work full time in the medical center and can bring their skills together on difficult and complex problems. Then if a patient has a complicated illness, the whole armamentarium of this medical center can be brought to bear.

“In addition to being a first-rate general hospital,” Dr. Danforth said, “we are a referral center. It may be easier or more pleasant to go some place... where there are more parking spaces, but if you're very sick or if you have serious or complicated problems, this is the place to be.”

The third service or contribution to the community is that of a teaching resource. “One half of the specialists in the St. Louis phone book received some or all of their training at this medical center. This is an irreplaceable resource. We teach medical students, interns, residents, nurses, inhalation therapists, radiation therapists and on and on. If these resources were suddenly lost or damaged in any way, the entire region would suffer, not only now, but for years to come. Damage to this medical center for this community, in my view, would be like damage to the goose that lays the golden egg.”

Dr. Danforth went on to discuss the contribution of medical research carried on in the Yalem and Shoenberg Research Buildings. “I think it is very important to continue support of this very important human endeavor. Research done at Jewish Hospital is a contribution of this institution to others. Benefits cross boundaries of geography and time, and I’m sure none of us would want it any other way,” he added.

Finally, Dr. Danforth spoke on the delivery of medical care. “We who are in teaching medical centers can attempt to point the way. We can learn more about the delivery of medical care. Jewish Hospital has housed and supported the medical care research group for some years before this science was very popular. We can also attempt to provide leadership, better organization and efficiency of medical care.”

But, he cautioned, “We need community support through the various community planning agencies to help control some of the distribution of medical care so that it doesn’t all concentrate out in the West County area or in other places and leave the city without proper medical care.”

In concluding, Dr. Danforth expressed two special convictions, the first being that “This medical center is the central, most important medical resource in this region. If the ground were to open and swallow us, the loss would be tremendous. The second conviction I have is that the institutions in this medical center have cast their lot together and should continue to do so. We need to work together, plan together, protect our heritages together and succeed together.”

In summary, Dr. Danforth expressed his thoughts that as society has moved from a simple to a complex time, “Jewish Hospital has moved from a relatively straightforward mission to one that’s complicated and multifaceted – from one that’s easy to understand and can be expressed in one sentence, to one that requires thought, explanation and continual re-affirmation. Jewish Hospital has changed from giving care as a general hospital to being part of the common effort to provide regional and national leadership.

“This expanded mission requires, however, the same commitment, same spirit, same intelligence, more planning and financial support from the St. Louis community as good hospitals have always required.

“The founders of our medical center had a vision for their day, and we will keep faith with them by having one of our own that’s appropriate for our day.”

Approximately 180 members of the Associates attended the dinner, which was presided over by Donald P. Gallop, president, and Mrs. Gideon H. Schiller, Mistress of Ceremonies.

Election was held for members of the Board of Directors of The Associates, Class of 1974. Those elected include: Mrs. Stanley M. Cohen, Donald P. Gallop, M. Norman Orgel, M.D., Paul T. Putzel, Mrs. Gideon H. Schiller, Arnold H. Schwab and James L. Watel.
Drs. Kleiger and Jick examine the transmitting and receiving elements of the Hospital's system for computer-interpreted electrocardiograms.

Electrocardiograms Interpreted By New York Computer

Electrocardiograms that measure heart action are being recorded at Jewish Hospital, transmitted to a computer in New York, interpreted by the machine and then transmitted back to St. Louis.

"The electrocardiograms are ready for review by a cardiologist the same day," said Dr. Robert Kleiger, director of Jewish Hospital's Medical Intensive Care Unit and an Assistant Professor of Medicine at Washington University.

Electrocardiograms, called ECGs or EKGs, are a measure of the electrical activity of the heart. Graphs made from these measurements can indicate a heart attack or a normal heart. About 17,000 ECGs are made each year at Jewish Hospital, 50 to 100 a day.

Dr. Kleiger and Dr. Sidney Jick, an Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine at Washington University, said that it would take two to three hours to read a day's output of ECGs at Jewish Hospital. The computer cuts this time by two thirds.

"Time and more time is needed for individual reading by the cardiologist of graphs," said Dr. Jick. "The computer makes the initial readings, saving time and speeding the diagnosis of a patient."

"The computer will often be 80 to 90 percent correct," said Dr. Jick. "Sometimes its uncanny. It can make a very complete diagnosis."

The machine approaches 100 percent in its score on normal heart action. If a physician knows that his patient's heart is normal, he can then move to another area for investigation.

The computer is not as exact in the detection of abnormal heart rhythms, called arrhythmia, but it enables the physician to make the calculation quicker because most of the work already has been completed.

"Using the computer, a cardiologist can check 50 electrocardiograms in less than one hour," said Dr. Kleiger.

Dr. Kleiger said that the eventual use of heart computers would come in smaller hospitals outside urban areas. There a cardiologist might not be available and only a few ECGs a day might be needed. Such a network would allow the small hospital to transmit the heart rate measurement into the computer, have it interpreted and then checked before being transmitted back.

Jewish Hospital has been involved in the testing of the concept since last July. (Through the generosity of Joseph Friedman, the Cro-Med Bionics Corporation agreed to allow the Hospital complete use of the system for three months without charge.)

"The primary boon at this time is that it saves valuable skilled staff hours so that technical ability can be applied elsewhere," said Dr. Kleiger.
Checking the day’s assignments with members of his staff is Lee Saville, center, director of Security.

Eight o’clock and all’s well--

Security in Action

A station wagon parked near the Emergency Room entrance of The Jewish Hospital suddenly caught fire. A member of the Hospital’s security staff saw this happen, rushed out and extinguished the flame. It was later learned there were several cases of highly flammable materials in the car, which if the fire had not been put out immediately, would have caused serious damage and danger to persons in the area.

This, and other incidents like it, serve to highlight just one aspect of the value of the Hospital’s security force in its service to patients, visitors, employees and members of the community.

“Our aim is to provide assistance and security to everyone on the premises,” said Lee Saville, director of Security, as he related the spectrum of services made available by his force. “We strive to provide well-trained personnel who can enhance the orderly operation of Jewish Hospital on a 24-hour a day basis.”

The mission of the security force is multifaceted, explained Mr. Saville. In carrying out their responsibilities, members of the force, made up of Wells Fargo Security Guards, give directions and general information to visitors, help control traffic and parking around Jewish Hospital, provide emergency service as necessary, act as a liaison with local law enforcement and community agencies, and have detailed assignments to assist in communications, automobile and pedestrian traffic in the event of any major disaster in the St. Louis area.

One aspect of the security program that has received much attention recently is the Hospital’s escort service. Visitors leaving the Hospital in the evening receive an escort to their car, a courtesy extended to visitors and employees alike.

“The response on the part of visitors and staff to the escort program has been outstanding,” said Mr. Saville.

This response has been verbal as well as in the form of letters from visitors and patients. In one letter praising a security staff member, the visitor called him, “Johnny-on-the-spot when anyone needs help. He goes out of his way to assist people.” Another letter commented that “Your guards were very considerate and offered to escort me to my car. More than that, they insisted on looking around and seeing that I was safely in the car and on my way. One was especially helpful when my car was quite a distance away and he insisted on walking with me.”

Yet another read, “I want to express my deep appreciation of the courteous and thoughtful service that I received from the guards on duty during the evenings that I visited my mother. Each guard that escorted me to my car rendered the same considerate and helpful service, and from my observation, this same service was extended to everyone.”

Not only does the security force do good work, but its members do the work in large amounts. Between 50 and 75 persons may be escorted each evening. This same service is available for employees all night. At the same time, the usual security force is maintained inside the Hospital building.

Mr. Saville is not content to bask in the compliments his staff has received, but plans for the future. He remarked on the present Expansion Program, saying he is organizing the security staff in such a way to allow it to augment the needs of the program. He also seeks to expand the present services to include the new parking deck and other developments as they take place.

“This Hospital works on a 24-hour basis. It never closes its doors and never stops functioning. Any service that will help it keep functioning will be provided,” assured Mr. Saville.
New Funds, Bequests Announced

John E. Simon Establishes ‘Scholar In Medicine’

Edward B. Greensfelder, president of the Board of Directors of The Jewish Hospital, has announced the establishment of a new program to support physician-investigators in the Hospital’s Department of Medicine.

The program has been made possible by a $200,000 pledge from John E. Simon, philanthropist and Hospital Board Member.

“The purpose of the new fund,” said Mr. Greensfelder, “is to provide initial salary support for promising young full-time research and teaching specialists in internal medicine.”

In 1965 Mr. Simon gave the Jewish Hospital $500,000 as an endowment for establishing the John E. and Adaline Simon Professorship in Medicine at Washington University Medical School and Jewish Hospital. “We are particularly grateful to John Simon for his leadership in recognizing a further important financial need of the institution at a time when federal funds for such purposes are being reduced.”

Each recipient of an award under the new program will be known as a “John E. Simon Scholar in Medicine.”

A number of bequests have recently been made to The Jewish Hospital, and several new funds have been established, all contributing to the support of research and patient care activities.

The establishment of a new Fund for the Prevention of Blindness has been made possible through the gift of $19,000 from the Adeline Ruenzi Radio Fund for the Blind.

The Department of Ophthalmology, under the direction of Dr. Edward Berg, will use the funds from this endowment to carry out research on the prevention of blindness and to re-equip the Department of Ophthalmology.

The Adeline Ruenzi Radio Fund for the Blind was established in 1929 by Miss Ruenzi and Mrs. Sidney Bass, and the funds collected toward it were used to provide radios and radio repair for totally blind persons.

Mrs. Lewis T. Apple, President of the Ruenzi Fund for the past 37 years, said upon announcement of the gift, “Since the fund no longer serves its intended purposes, Vice President Mrs. Thomas McPheeters and I felt the funds would serve the best purposes by being converted, $5,000 going to the Service Club for the Blind and the balance to Jewish Hospital, for work in the prevention of blindness.”

The establishment of the Harry and Fay Pasternak Margolies Cancer Research Fund has been made possible with the bequest of $10,000 to the Jewish Hospital through the will of the late Harry Margolies.

The funds will be used by Dr. Arthur E. Baue, Surgeon-in-Chief, to carry out research activities in the study of cancer.

The gift was made recently by Sam Pasternak, trustee of the Margolies estate.

A generous contribution has been made by Sigmund Wolfort toward the support of research activities carried on in the Department of Medicine by Dr. Stanford Wessler, Physician-in-Chief.

Dr. Wessler and E. Thye Yin will use these funds to carry on research toward developing a sensitive blood assay to recognize when patients are suffering from bacterial sepsis.

The contribution has been added to the Sigmund and Clara Wolfort Research Fund, which was established in 1969.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fixman have established the Ben and Marilyn Fixman Reach to Recovery Fund, with a gift of $1,000 to the Hospital.

This fund will be used to purchase prostheses for indigent patients who have undergone radical mastectomies and are unable to incur the expense themselves.

The establishment of the Clara Monheimer London Scholarship has been made possible through a gift to the Hospital from the Monheimer/London Trust. This contribution was also made possible through the efforts of Dr. J. G. Probststein.

The scholarship will be used annually to send qualified members of the nursing staff to a workshop, institute or conference in their specialty, and will be awarded each year at the Graduation Ceremonies of the School of Nursing.

The Paula Michel Surgical Research Fund has been established at The Jewish Hospital by Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Kopolow in memory of Mrs. Kopolow’s mother.

The funds will be used by Dr. Arthur E. Baue, Surgeon-in-Chief, to carry out his surgical research activities in open-heart surgery and shock.

The establishment of the Emil Tamm Memorial Fund has been made possible through a gift to The Jewish Hospital by Mrs. Emil Tamm in memory of her husband.
Harold Scheff
New Assistant Director

The appointment of Harold (Pat) Scheff, Jr., as assistant director of the Hospital has been announced by David A. Gee, executive director.

Mr. Scheff will assume responsibility for the administration of the Food Service Department, the Building Service Department with its divisions of Plant Operations, Maintenance and Construction, the Laundry, Housekeeping, and the Security Program, with its divisions of Fire and Safety, Disaster Planning and Parking.

Mr. Scheff was graduated from Colgate University with an A.B. degree in history, and received a masters degree in Hospital Administration from the Washington University School of Medicine.

After serving his administrative residency at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Miami, Florida, Mr. Scheff assumed the post of administrator of the Comprehensive Health Care Project at the University of Miami School of Medicine. Prior to joining the Jewish Hospital staff, he served as associate director of the Division of Health Facilities Planning at the Alliance for Regional Community Health.

H. G. Lieberman
Appointed to Hospital Board

Announcement has been made of the appointment of Harold G. Lieberman as an ex officio member of the Board of Directors of The Jewish Hospital of St. Louis.

Mr. Lieberman was recently elected president of the Jewish Center for Aged, to succeed Robert L. Shifrin.

H. G. Lieberman

President of the Lieberman Corp., major real estate developers and builders, Mr. Lieberman has served as a Vice-President of the Jewish Center for Aged since 1967.

A member of the Board of Directors of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis, Mr. Lieberman is also a veteran campaign leader and former budget committee member. He has also held various leadership posts in United Fund Campaigns.

In reflecting on his new position Mr. Scheff commented, “It’s exciting to be associated with a university-affiliated hospital that is active in the more advanced areas of health care. There’s no question that there is a tremendous challenge in the administration of the various areas I will be working with and I look upon it both as a challenge and opportunity at the same time.

Patients’ Comments

An integral part of the patient relations program at the Hospital is the concern with which comments are received on care from patients. These comments are solicited in letters sent from the Hospital to discharged patients, asking them for their opinions of the care received and any suggestions they may have for improvement.

A clear majority of patient comment letters received are favorable. Comments include compliments of the food, personnel, services received and medical treatment.

Examples of these letters include: "Your hospital is the very best hospital I have been in and one of the very best in St. Louis and St. Louis county." Another read, "I have only the very highest praise for the tremendous staff of nurses and doctors in your hospital. All of the services were marvelous."

One discharged patient commented that, "The nurses were there whenever I needed them. They would always come in and check on me to see if I was all right and needed anything. The food was delicious. The room was cleaned every day and my ice pitcher was filled often."

Another comment on the food was made by a new mother who stated that "There was a wide variety of foods to choose from, and much time was given to eat each meal," and then closed her comment with the positive thought that she “would like to have my next baby at this hospital."

It is this overall attention to patient needs, and "service with a smile" attitude that proves so popular with patients at the Hospital. That attitude of warmth and friendliness makes the difference between a patient who simply stays at a hospital, and one who is able to say (as did a young mother in maternity), "I really enjoyed my stay at Jewish Hospital."
The ARCH Board should be fully aware of the consequences of further promoting the Horace Greely syndrome. Every bed that opens in the west county represents a bed that is jeopardized in the city of St. Louis. Some simple correlations between occupancy rates in the west county hospitals and city hospitals over the past eight months clearly shows the demand levels for beds in the county at the expense of the city. In effect, therefore, a decision in favor of adding more beds to west St.

Comments
On Westward Migration
Of Hospitals

Editor’s Note . . . During April and May, the community’s attention was focused on plans of several city-based institutions to relocate in West St. Louis County in addition to expansion of several hospitals already in the west county area. Planning for the proper deployment and size of hospitals has become a national health issue. Failure to have comprehensive health planning is translated into increased health care expense, duplication of facilities, loss of accessibility to portions of the community and dramatic changes in the financing of indigent care and medical education. The migration issue erupted at the April Board Meeting of the Alliance for Regional Community Health (ARCH). A statement made by David A. Gee, executive director, bears on this issue.

Louis county is also a decision to close down an equal number of beds in the city of St. Louis.

Not only will the numbers of patients be diminished in the city-based institutions, but also the character of the patients will change. The suburban-based white, affluent patient will increasingly receive his care in the county institutions while the remaining beds in the city will be used by the less affluent black population. There are already entirely too many examples of the neglect and community apathy that accompanies this kind of sociologic shift.

The ARCH Board should also reflect upon the importance of the medical school complexes to the life of St. Louis and its entire surrounding area. The Washington University Medical Center with its medical school, Barnes Hospital, Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, St. Louis Children’s Hospital, and the Jewish Hospital, together with St. Louis University, its medical school, Firmin Desloge Hospital, Wohl Memorial Hospital, and Cardinal Glennon Hospital, are focal points of medical excellence that should be preserved and treasured by this community. An adequate economic base for these institutions is absolutely essential if they are to be maintained.

Let us examine a few examples:

1) According to ARCH patient statistics, 21 percent of all the patients in St. Louis county are cared for in the Washington University and St. Louis University Medical Centers; 32 percent of the patients from the inner west area receive their care at these two centers. It is impossible to believe that the increase in hospital beds in this inner west area will not materially affect the patients presently using the two university centers.

2) There are 485 interns, residents, and clinical fellows in training at the St. Louis University and Washington University Medical Centers, together with 855 medical students. Compare this with the 45 interns and residents in training at the west county institutions. Anything that detracts from this medical education effort will eventually damage all of the people in St. Louis and the surrounding area.

3) According to United Fund figures on charity work done by hospitals in this community, 86 percent of the free care is delivered by inner city hospitals; 70 percent of the charity caseload is carried by the Washington U. and St. Louis U. Medical Centers. Contrast this with only 8 percent of the community’s charity load identified with the west county institutions. Neither the United Fund, the city of St. Louis, the state of Missouri nor the federal government, pays for this charity work. Removal of the economic base of support will inevitably result in reduction in service to those citizens of St. Louis who can least afford the full cost of medical care.

4) In terms of finance, the teaching medical centers are already struggling with the problems of balanced budgets. These institutions either have deficits or have such a small profit margin that working capital cannot be maintained. Contrast this with the profits experienced by at least one county institution during 1970 which were in excess of $1 million after funding full depreciation.

5) The city-based university medical centers provide employment for approximately 9,000 people. A reduction in beds, or loss of further revenues, will inevitably jeopardize these positions.

I can only conclude that the increase of beds in St. Louis county will eventually serve to destroy the health care system that has been painfully and expensively built up over the years at the teaching medical centers. It will also serve to increase the pressure on the remaining hospitals in St. Louis to protect themselves financially by building satellites in the county or moving entirely to the county. The consequences of such a move should be obvious to all members of this group.

To date, the ARCH staff and Board has not come up with any overall community blueprint to give guidance to the proper creation and location of physical facilities to meet the health care of this community. I would urge that there be a moratorium on further construction of beds in the county until a plan is worked out that will protect the interest of the total community instead of just one small portion of the community.

(Below) Dr. Carl J. Heifetz, right, senior attending surgeon, congratulates Dr. Curt Vogel, a resident in Surgery, as he presents him with the Nat Koplar Award in Surgical Research. Dr. Vogel's research involved the study of the method of providing adequate nutrition to patients through the use of intravenous feedings alone. On hand is Dr. Jerry Meyers, also a resident in Surgery, who received recognition for his surgical research.

An artist’s touch is being added to the setting of the 1972 Clover Ball — a touch that will contribute toward making the event a visual delight for everyone in attendance.

The expertise of Del Dace, Coordinator of Visual Arts Education for the Ladue School District, and Master Scenic Artist for the St. Louis Municipal Opera, will be brought into play as he takes charge of preparing the adornment of the Khorassan Room of the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel, the site of the Ball.

He has been working with Co-Chairmen of Room Decorations, Mrs. Marvin W. Goodman and Mrs. Ruby Cohn, and Chairman of Table Decorations, Mrs. Samuel Lerman.

“Mr. Dace has been a joy to work with. He is not only talented, but his fresh approach to room decoration and his enthusiasm have made us certain this Ball will be the most exciting yet,” commented Mrs. Cohn.

In addition to his excellence in this work, Mr. Dace has an impressive list of credentials concerning his educational background, working experience and professional activities.

His works have won numerous honors at art showings in the state, and he has held several one-man shows as well. Mr. Dace has also made many contributions in the area of art education. Among them is that he is immediate past president of the Suburban Art Education Association, has been selected as one of 75 art educators to participate in a seminar for the improvement of art supervision, sponsored by the National Art Education Association, and he served as Chairman of a Committee on Behavioral Design of Art Curriculum for the Illinois Art Education Association.

Saturday, January 22, 1972, is the date for the Clover Ball, the proceeds of which will be used to establish an Observation Unit, a new concept in Medical Care, as part of the new Emergency Rooms.

At the same time, this third Clover Ball will celebrate the 20th Anniversary of the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary.

Music for dancing will be played by Lester Lanin and his Society Orchestra, a group which has performed with much success at the last two Clover Balls. A cocktail hour will precede the dinner, at which time guests will be entertained by the music of St. Louis’ Art Schieler and his men.

Prices for tickets are $75 per person and $300 per couple for patrons. Patron reservations may be made in advance.

Over-seeing all the plans in progress for the Clover Ball are General Chairman, Mrs. Joseph F. Ruwitch, and her Vice-Chairmen, Mrs. Norman W. Drey, Mrs. Irving M. Goldstein and Mrs. Edwin G. Shifrin.

Clover Ball Preparations Continue

Mrs. Norman W. Drey, outgoing president of the Hospital Auxiliary and former member of the Clover Ball Steering Committee, has accepted the post of Vice Chairman of the Clover Ball, replacing Mrs. M. Erwin Bry, Jr., who has been elected president of the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary.

“Our Ball committee is very lucky to have a person of Mrs. Drey’s leadership and capability step in to fill this important chairmanship,” said Mrs. Joseph F. Ruwitch, Clover Ball general chairman.

Mrs. Bry will continue to work closely with the Ball committee as Auxiliary president and member of the Steering Committee.

David Brinkley Speaks at Spring Meeting

"I can’t remember when I’ve been in a room with so many beautiful women. If I ever get sick, I’m coming to St. Louis," announced David Brinkley, NBC News Commentator, who was guest speaker at the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary’s Annual Spring Meeting.

Mr. Brinkley’s visit to St. Louis was greeted by dark, cloudy skies, pouring rain and generally gloomy weather, but inside the Mayan Room of the Bel Air East Motel on May 6, the atmosphere was entirely different. Peals of laughter responded to Mr. Brinkley’s clever observations and amusing anecdotes, and frequent applause seemed to mark approval of his astute comments on the Washington political scene and his barbs on this same subject.

In addition to Mr. Brinkley’s address, Auxiliary business was carried out, with approval of By-Laws to the Auxiliary Constitution as the first item on the agenda.

Mrs. Norman W. Drey, out-going Auxiliary president, reported on the organization’s progress toward its pledge of $1 million and one million service hours to the Hospital’s Expansion Program. The Auxiliary has raised $213,000 toward the monetary goal and contributed 95,308 volunteer hours toward the service goal; both achievements having taken place in the 1970-71 year.

Edward B. Greensfelder, president of the Hospital, in his remarks to the guests, reported on the progress of the Hospital’s Expansion Program, noting the Parking Deck construction is on schedule and expected to be completed in September, while the renovation of the Psychiatry Department is expected to be completed by its target date in November.

A Nominating Committee Report was presented by Mrs. Stanley M. Cohen, Chairman of the committee, nominating a slate of officers and directors of the Hospital Auxiliary to serve two and three year terms. Candidates nominated were elected and installation was conducted by Mrs. Samuel D. Soule. (Details of the election are contained in a related article on the following page.)

Judging from the general good-humor of the departing guests and the applause and laughter that were heard so frequently during the afternoon of May 6, the Annual Spring Meeting of the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary was a great success.
Auxiliary Installs New Officers

Election of new officers and directors of The Jewish Hospital Auxiliary was held during the organization's Annual Spring Meeting.

Officers elected to serve terms from 1971-1973 are Mrs. M. Erwin Bry, Jr., president; Mrs. Thomas Berger, vice president of Fund Raising; Mrs. Charles Steiner, financial secretary; Mrs. Clifford Shanfeld, assistant financial secretary; Mrs. Harold Elbert, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Jonas Weil, assistant corresponding secretary.

Directors elected to serve three year terms are Mrs. Donald Dickler, Mrs. Robert Levinsohn and Mrs. Ben Samuels. Mrs. David R. Smith was elected a director to fill an unexpired term.

Mrs. Norman W. Drey, retiring Auxiliary president, received a gold Auxiliary President's pin from Edward B. Greensfelder, Hospital president, as a token of the Hospital's appreciation for her work and leadership in the Hospital Auxiliary during her two years in office.

Mrs. Samuel D. Soule, in conducting the installation of officers and directors, elaborated on the impressive number of contributions each newly elected officer has made to the Auxiliary and commented on their years of service to the Hospital.

Mrs. M. Erwin Bry, Jr., newly elected president, has to her credit a long and varied list of services and contributions in different areas of the Hospital Auxiliary.

Mrs. Bry began this service to Jewish Hospital as, in the words of Mrs. Soule, "a messenger boy-girl," delivering packages from the Gift Gallery to patients in the Hospital.

She then served as a buyer of jewelry in the Gift Gallery from 1957-70, during which time she moved up the leadership responsibility ladder in the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Bry served on the Auxiliary Board as Chairman of First Foto, worked as a Co-Chairman of Tray Favors, Chairman of Hospitality and on the Community Relations Committee of the Auxiliary. She served a term as vice president of Membership Services and also as a director for a four-year term of office.

Showing a constant interest in the undertakings of the Hospital Auxiliary, Mrs. Bry has participated in the planning of all three of the Auxiliary's Clover Balls. She served on both the Patron and Decoration Committee for the first Ball, on the Invitation Committee and as chairman of the Souvenir Wrap Committee of the second Clover Ball. Until her election as Auxiliary president, Mrs. Bry served as a Vice Chairman of the 1972 Clover Ball, and in giving up that position, has taken a seat on the Steering Committee of the Ball.

In her acceptance speech, Mrs. Bry recognized and gave appreciation for the efforts and strides of her predecessors in office, and re-emphasized the determination, work and re dedication to purpose necessary by Auxiliary members to make the 1972 Clover Ball a success, and also in fulfilling the organization's pledge to the Hospital Expansion Program.
Hospital Appoints 23 Interns

The Hospital has appointed 23 interns for the year beginning July 1, 1971, according to David A. Gee, executive director. The Hospital's house staff of more than 75 interns and residents is fundamental to a fine patient care program.

The presence of highly qualified interns and residents 24 hours a day is essential in providing sophisticated medical services for critically ill patients.

Internship positions are difficult to fill. There are 7,120 hospitals in the U.S., but only about 1,000 of these are approved by the American Medical Association's Council on Medical Education to conduct internship training. These hospitals offer about 14,500 intern positions annually, but there are only some 7,000 medical graduates to fill the positions.
Captain Nicholas W. Manderfield spent six weeks at The Jewish Hospital as an administrative resident, studying the administration of a civilian hospital. Capt. Manderfield, who serves in the Air Force, is administrative resident at USAF Medical Center, Scott, at Scott Air Force Base. He received a B.S. degree in biology from the University of Detroit and is presently working toward a masters degree in health administration from the Washington University School of Medicine. After completing his residency, Capt. Manderfield will serve as administrator at Beale Air Force Base Hospital, in California.

Nadean E. Wright, R.N., director, Central Medical and Surgical Supply, spoke at a meeting of the Midwest Hospital Congress, on March 18 in Kansas City. Mrs. Wright addressed the Conference on the Jewish Hospital’s Central Supply Technicians Training Program, and titled her speech, “Now a Training Program for Central Supply in the Midwest.”

Mrs. Sandra J. Leimer, coordinator of the Occupational Therapy Department, has been elected president of the Missouri Occupational Therapy Association, effective July 1.

Mrs. Barbara Janes, director, Community Relations and Development, attended the Executive Board Meeting of the National Association for Hospital Development, held March 4-6 in New Orleans. She also attended the meeting of the Missouri Hospital Association Education and Public Information meeting, held in Jefferson City on March 8.

Miss Marguerite Odell, director, Volunteer Services, attended the Midwest Hospital Congress in Kansas City, on March 17-19. The meeting also included an institute for Directors of Volunteer Services, as well as the semi-annual meeting of the Missouri Association of Directors of Volunteers.

Rabbi Lawrence Siegel, Hospital Chaplain, addressed a meeting of the Association of Operating Room Nurses of St. Louis on the topic, “From Admission to Discharge for a Patient with a Breast Tumor.”

Eugene Mosley, a part-time employee in the Coffee Shop since 1968, has been awarded a scholarship to St. Louis University. He previously attended Forest Park Junior College on a scholarship awarded last spring.

Mrs. Carol Rice, Occupational Therapist, has been elected Recording Secretary of the Missouri Occupational Therapy Association, effective July 1.

The basketball team of the School of Nursing ranked third in the Missouri Third District Student Nurses Basketball League, and was chosen to participate in the 1971 Cotton States Nurses Basketball Tournament in Memphis, held February 25-27. The entire student body sponsored several fund raising events that enabled the Student Association to pay the team’s expenses to Memphis.

Ensign Kathleen A. Haley, a graduate of the Jewish Hospital School of Nursing, was awarded the Leadership Award at her graduation from the Navy Nurse Corps Class in Newport, R.I. She was cited for “Outstanding personal example and sense of moral responsibility.”

Recent graduates of the Hospital’s Central Supply Technicians Training Program, John Evans receives a diploma from Hospital president, Edward B. Greensfelder, while Mrs. Clara Richardson’s technician’s pin is affixed by Mrs. Nadean Wright, R.N., Supervisor in Central Medical and Surgical Supply, class instructor. On hand is David A. Gee, executive director.

A model patient calls a nurse while relaxing in a modern room display unit the Hospital proposes to use for furnishing rooms in the new patient care building, to be constructed as part of the on-going Expansion Program.

Describing the workings of the monitoring system in the Surgical Intensive Care Unit to members of “Medical Orientation USA” who toured the Hospital, is Dr. Rudolfo N. Perez, a House Staff member in the Department of Medicine. The Orientation program is an affiliation of St. Louis University and St. John’s Hospital in Detroit for the purpose of providing an intensive English program for foreign physicians, preparing them for internships in the U.S.
