NEW HOSPITAL TO BE BUILT IN THE MEDICAL CENTER

Plans for a new $3,000,000 hospital and research building, much of it to be paid for by gifts from Mr. and Mrs. David P. Wohl and the Wohl Foundation, have been announced by Dr. Oliver H. Lowry, dean of the Washington University School of Medicine. The cost estimate includes about $950,000 for equipment.

The building is to be 11 stories high, with a basement and sub-basement. Six floors will be devoted to research in internal medicine, surgery, and pathology. The entire Pathology Department of the School of Medicine will be housed in the building. Three floors will be for hospital use with a total of 80 to 90 beds, and the remaining floors will be used for an amphitheater, out-patient facilities, and administration.

A federal grant of $743,238 to aid in construction of the new building has been announced by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, D. C. Architect for the building will be the firm of Murphy & Mackey. The building will adjoin the east side of the present David P. Wohl, Jr., Memorial Hospital and will be of matching construction. No construction date will be set until the plans are complete.

Mr. and Mrs. Wohl previously have given more than $5,000,000 to St. Louis medical, educational and welfare organizations, including funds for two municipal health centers. Mr. Wohl was president of Wohl Shoe Company until he retired in 1951 when the firm merged with Brown Shoe Company. He is a member of the Board of Managers of the Washington University Clinics, and member of the Board of Trustees of Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital.

MISS JOAN ELLISON

We are pleased to announce the appointment of Miss Joan Ellison as Associate Director in charge of Education in the Dietary Department. Miss Ellison came to Barnes from her hometown of Ames, Iowa, where she has been doing post-graduate work at Iowa State College.

Miss Ellison received her bachelor’s degree in Dietetics at Iowa State. After serving her Internship in Dietetics at the University of Michigan Hospital, she entered Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y., and obtained her master’s degree in Nutrition.

Prior to her appointment here, Miss Ellison taught at Iowa State College and the University of Utah, and served for a time on the Home Economics Research staff of the University of Nebraska.

Miss Ellison says that she has not yet seen much of St. Louis, but that Forest Park is the most attractive place she has visited. We hope Miss Ellison will have a long and pleasant association with Barnes and affiliated hospitals.

More and more often we are hearing such common sense phrases as, "Life-long Learning" and "Education is a Continuing Process." In order to develop new skills and techniques for business, leisure, and retirement, which are constantly being demanded of us in the Hydrogen Age, we are becoming more aware that our education is no longer terminated when we are graduated from high school or college; learning is, has been, and must become for us, a life-long process. Statistics show that last year more people in the United States over the age of 22 attended some sort of formal adult education program than the total of all the children and youth under 22 enrolled in school or college programs.

All of us at one time or another have expressed, either verbally or to ourselves, that if there were only time in our busy day there are many subjects which we would like to explore. Through evening study University College offers you that opportunity now. There is no time like the present to sharpen your learning tools. A wise adage tells us, "The time we take to sharpen our tools is never wasted time."

A free copy of Washington University's evening school catalogue, with complete listing of courses available, may be obtained by writing or telephoning the University College office, 100 Brookings Hall, PA rkview 7-4700, Station 212. Free course planning and counseling is available day or evening; for an appointment call Station 510.

SEPTEMBER IS "SIGHT-SAVING" MONTH

The Lighthouse-Society for the Blind in cooperation with the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness has set September as "Sight-Saving" Month, and has adopted the slogan: "A Word to the Wise: Take Care of Your Eyes."

Taking care of our eyes means constant vigilance against the serious injuries which come with accidents, at work, at play and at home. Persons engaged in hazardous employment are supplied with protective eye equipment, but even then the goggles are of no help, in time of accident, if they are dangling around our necks, stuck in a pocket, or neatly stacked on a locker shelf.

The Lighthouse-Society for the Blind recommends the wearing of safety goggles for the do-it-yourself fan, too. Many of the conditions which cause industrial accidents are present in your own home workshop--that's why the home runs ahead of industry as the site of most tragic eye mishaps.

The Lighthouse-Society is also campaigning this September for all persons over forty (Continued on next page)
Shown above is the 1957 group of Danforth Girls who visited the Medical Center on July 23. Mr. Earl A. Sindicuse of Ralston-Purina Company, who guides the group through their four-week fellowship tour, stands on the right.

The Ralston-Purina Company has offered the Wm. H. Danforth Summer Fellowship to Home Economics seniors since 1936. The plan of the fellowship is to bring together outstanding young women from leading state universities for a four weeks’ program of study, research, leadership training, and fellowship. The program was designed to give young women on the brink of graduation an insight into the business world and help them in adjusting to their jobs after graduation.

The Danforth Fellowship has become widely recognized internationally. The late Mr. Wm. H. Danforth, former Chairman of the Board and Founder of the Ralston-Purina Company and former President and Founder of the Danforth Foundation, was tremendously interested in the activities of this group and gave considerable time to helping build the program.

There are many words that are confined to areas far too small for them. The word FAITH is one of these. Some think of this element in only one relationship—as it applies to religion. It has a very real place in this area, but not the only one. We miss the point when we fail to see the place in all areas of daily living. It serves as the basis for progress. It prompts one to think and act beyond the limits of our requirements.

We are inwardly fashioned for faith, and this is the environment in which we are most comfortable. Fear, anxiety and worry are not really native to our existence; we manufacture these out of experiences we select or let ourselves become involved in during the course of our days. The need of faith is not something imposed upon us by society, but it is an intrinsic part of our very being. We can determine to live without this element, but when we do we find ourselves faced with a rather troublesome task.

The story of the human family reveals the fact that every generation has given expression, in one way or another, to the faith of the people. No other element has met with such general acceptance. The understanding and use of faith has advanced with the changing times, but the message to us is basically the same. It is essential. It enlarges our concept of the world we have been privileged to know. It elevates our appreciation of our fellowmen. It is available, but no one secures it by accident.

SUMMER JOKES (And Summer Not)

There's a new deodorant in the Barnes Drug Store. It's called "Vanish". It doesn't kill the odor, but it makes you invisible so nobody knows where the smell is coming from.....As far as bad breath is concerned this summer, it's better to have Halitosis than no breath at all.....Hot Weather Tip: Change your clothes often, even if it's only with the person sitting next to you.....We hear one of the fellows in IBM recently got seven pairs of cuff links as birthday presents. He only wears short-sleeved shirts, so he went out and had his wrists pierced.....Message to those horseback riding girls in Dr. Bradley's Office: There's nothing on earth like your first horseback ride to make you feel better off.....If the men who work for the Treasury Department are known at T-men, are the women called T-bags?.....The doctors 'round about have summer troubles, too: Dr. Ososky asked his patient if she played golf. She answered: "Heck, no. I wouldn't even know how to hold the caddy".....In the cafeteria an intern was overheard saying: "I told him we couldn't do much for his complaint as it was

THE MASTER'S HAND
'Twas battered and scarred; the auctioneer
Thought it scarcely worth his while
To waste much time on the old violin,
But he held it up with a smile.

"What am I bidden, good folks?" he cried
"Who'll start the bidding for me?
"Two dollars once--two dollars twice--
"Who'll make it three?"

"Three dollars once, three dollars twice,
"Going for three?" -- but no!
From the back of the room a greyhaired man
Came forward and picked up the bow.

He wiped the dust from the old violin
And tightened all the strings,
And played a melody pure and sweet--
As sweet as an angel sings.

The music ceased, and the auctioneer
With a voice that was quiet and low
Said, "What am I bid for the old violin?"
And he held it up with its bow.

"One thousand bid--now who'll bid two?
"Two thousand, and who'll make it three?
"Three thousand once, three thousand twice
"And going and going and gone," said he.

The people cheered, but some of them said:
"We do not understand
"What changed its worth?" And he replied:
"The touch of a master's hand!"

And many a man with life out of tune
And battered and torn with sin,
Is auctioned cheap to a thoughtless crowd,
Much like the old violin.

"A mess of pottage, a glass of wine,
"A game," and he travels on--
He's going once, he's going twice,
He's going and almost gone!

But the Master may come and the foolish crowd
Can never quite understand
The worth of a soul or the change that's wrought
By the touch of the Master's hand!
