Greek comedy recast

Adaptation of Aristophanes' Lysistrata depicts the humorous side of alternatives to war

The Performing Arts Area will present an original adaptation of Aristophanes' comedy Lysistrata Friday through Sunday, Oct. 14-16 and 21-23, at Edison Theatre on campus. All performances begin at 8 p.m. General admission is $4. Admission for WU faculty, staff and all University and area students is $3. Group rates are available. For more information, phone the box office at 889-6943.

The Woman's Club of Washington University is sponsoring a theatre party for all faculty and staff on Saturday, Oct. 22. For $7 a person, theatre-goers will receive a ticket to the performance; enjoy wine, cheese and conversation in Lambert Lounge during intermission; and have coffee and dessert with the cast after the performance.

For reservations, send checks payable to the Woman's Club of Washington University to Mrs. Anna Mac Ballard, 7580 Kingsbury St., St. Louis, Mo. 63130. The deadline is Oct. 19.

Feminist author, poet Robin Morgan will speak on Women's Movement

Feminist author and poet Robin Morgan will speak on “Sisterhood and the Women’s Revolution” at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, in Graham Chapel.

Morgan’s lecture, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the Women’s Programming Board, Women’s Studies, the Assembly Series and the Campus Bookstore.

Morgan has been active in the Women’s Movement since 1967 when she co-founded New York Radical Women, the first Women’s Liberation group in the city. In 1968, she organized the Miss America Pageant Protest, the first mass demonstration of the current wave of feminism. The following year she organized a nation-wide protest against bridal fairs.

Morgan compiled and edited Sisterhood is Powerful, the first comprehensive anthology of writings from the Women’s Liberation Movement. Published in 1970, the book, which includes articles, poems, photographs and manifestos, is a basic text in many women’s studies programs.

She has authored two works of nonfiction, The Anatomy of Freedom and Going Too Far. The Personal Chronicle of a Feminist, and is working on a novel. She also is working on a novel.

Asian homeland is topic of Smith lecture

Huston Smith, author of Religions of Man and former WU professor of philosophy, will deliver the Alice Hahn Goodman Memorial Lecture at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, in Graham Chapel. An informal discussion with Smith will follow his lecture in the Ann Whitney Olin Women’s Building Lounge.

Smith is the Hanna Professor of Philosophy at Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn. His talk which is free and open to the public, is titled “Richer by Asia.” The lecture is co-sponsored by the Asian Art Society and the Assembly Series, with the support of the Department of Chinese and Japanese and the Campus Bookstore.

Smith, who was born in Soochow, China, in 1919, has devoted much of his teaching career to bridging the intellectual gulf between the Far East and the Western Hemisphere. He lived in China with his missionary parents until he was 17 years old and has returned to Asia eight times to do field work.

Religions of Man, his comparative study of world religions, has sold over two million copies since it was first published in 1958. N.K. Burger of The New York Times said the book is “an intelligent, clearly written study, which reveals the spirit of each faith.”

Before assuming his present position last June at Hamline University, Smith held a 10-year appointment as the Thomas J. Watson Professor of Religion and Distinguished Adjunct Professor of Philosophy at Syracuse University. From 1958 to 1973, he was professor of philosophy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was a professor of philosophy at WU from 1947 to 1958.

Smith, who holds seven honorary degrees, was one of six professors in 1964 to receive the national E. Harris Harbison Award for Distinguished Teaching. That same year, he was a featured guest on the opening and closing programs of ABC’s “Meet the Professor” series. In 1961, Smith held a 10-year appointment as the Thomas J. Watson Professor of Religion and Distinguished Adjunct Professor of Philosophy at Syracuse University. From 1958 to 1973, he was professor of philosophy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was a professor of philosophy at WU from 1947 to 1958.

Political economy committee formed

A Committee on Political Economy has been formed by a group of faculty members from the departments of political science and economics. According to Kenneth A. Shepsle, chair of the committee and professor of political science, WU is among the first to institute an interdisciplinary committee on political economy.

"Several top universities, including Carnegie-Mellon, the California Institute of Technology and the University of Rochester, are currently building strength in the field of political economics," said Shepsle.

"WU, however, already had the faculty resources to be a recognized leader among them. Instituting an interdisciplinary committee on political economics is unique among traditional arts and sciences faculties," Shepsle said.

Other committee members include: James E. Alt, professor of political science; Randall L. Calvert, associate professor of political science; Arthur T. Dentzer, associate professor of economics; and Barry R. Weingast, associate professor of economics.

The committee was approved by the Faculty Council of Arts and Sciences last spring, according to Ralph E. Morrow, dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and provost designate.

Modern political economy is a relatively young field of study. It explores the effects of politics on economic institutions and processes and the effects of economic self-interest on political institutions and practices.

According to Shepsle, the committee not only will enhance the research capabilities of the faculty but also will enrich the undergraduate and graduate curricula in public science and economics.

The committee plans to sponsor a visiting fellow of political economic every other year, and a visiting post-doctoral fellow on a regular basis, according to Shepsle.

The advantages of having a strong interdisciplinary research committee on political economy is twofold," Shepsle said. "It will increase the visibility of the research by our faculty and it will enhance the undergraduate and graduate training in this area. In order to understand an economic system, you must have a firm understanding of the politics of the society in which it is en- bedded and vice versa. The committee should prove to be an asset to both faculty and students."

Engineering degree receives accreditation

The Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology has granted full accreditation to the School of Engineering's newest undergraduate degree — the Bachelor of Science in Engineering and Public Policy. The accreditation (the highest level that the agency grants) lasts for six years with a re-accreditation visit at the end of that period. All seven WU undergraduate engineering degrees that were reviewed last November received the same six-year accreditation, including civil engineering, chemical engineering, mechanical engineering, computer science, electrical engineering, and systems science and engineering.

Russian generals and other World War II veterans gather to observe the 50th anniversary of the Russian Revolution. The photograph, taken by David Galluck of the St. Louis Post Dispatch in 1967 while on assignment, is featured in the School of Fine Arts Invitational exhibition: "St. Louis Photography 1983." The exhibit runs through Oct. 30 in Bixby Hall Gallery. (See Calendar for details.)
Three sophomores in the College of Arts and Sciences received the Phi Beta Kappa Freshman Book Award at the Fall Honors Assembly, Oct. 5. The second year that the honorary society has awarded scholarly books to WU students who have shown extraordinary academic achievement in a wide range of course material during their freshman year. The honored students are: Mary B. Carter, Florissant, Mo.; Lisa J. Downing, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; and Santa B. Suryaraman, Arcata, Calif.

James D. Gadel, coordinator and inspector of buildings and grounds in the physical facilities department, presented a paper on Sept. 24, titled "Modern Industrial Hygiene Inspection Techniques," at the quarterly meeting of the National Association of Public Health Officials held in Little Rock, Ark.

Laura Graf, a graduate student in sociology, presented a paper at the American Sociological Association held in Detroit the week of Aug. 29. The paper, "Evaluating the Evaluations: Alcoholism Treatment Programs," was delivered at the session on "The Study of Social Problems."

Venita Lake has been promoted to assistant to the dean of University College, effective Oct. 1. She received her AB degree from WU in 1963, and has been employed since 1974 in the Department of History and University College.

Anncile Mertz, professor and head of the WU Dance Division, has been nominated for a YWCA award given each year to outstanding women in eight areas of accomplishment. Mertz would receive the award for her leadership in the arts.

Robert P. Morgan, professor of technology and human affairs, has been appointed to a three-year term on the Committee on Research Grants of the National Research Council's Board on Science and Technology for International Development. The committee supports research in developing country institutions on selected scientific questions of wide applicability in agriculture and health. In August, he visited the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris, France, where he consulted for OECD's Science, Technology and Industry Directorate on science and technology for developing countries.

Thomas Schiff, assistant professor of oral diagnosis and radiology at the School of Dental Medicine, has been appointed a consultant to the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Therapeutics in the field of preventive dentistry for the year 1984. As a consultant, he will evaluate published and unpublished laboratory and clinical research on products as well as sections of the book, Accepted Dental Therapeutics.

James Sidwell has been appointed director of academic advising and student services in University College. He received his BS and MA degrees in education from the University of Missouri. Since 1973, he has served as dean of student services at the University of Wisconsin at Waukesha, where he administered admissions, financial aid, registration, student records, academic advising, testing and counseling. He will be responsible for academic advising, student records, financial aid and student services in University College.

Robert C. Williams, professor of history and dean of University College, lectured on "Russian Art and American Money" on Oct. 2 at the Brunnier Gallery of Iowa State University in Ames. On Oct. 5, he lectured on "The Naturalization of Early Soviet Culture" during East European Culture Week at Eastern Kentucky University in Lexington.

Have you done something noteworthy? Have you: Presented a paper? Won an award? Been named to a committee or elected an officer of a professional organization? The Washington University Record will help spread the good news. Contributions regarding activities are gladly accepted and encouraged. Send a brief note with your name, department and activity to Notables, Campus Box 1142. Please include a phone number where you can be reached.

Medical center provided $66 million in unreimbursed medical care in 1982

Sponsoring institutions of the WU Medical Center provided more than $66 million in unreimbursed medical care during the 1982 fiscal year. The amount of unreimbursed medical care represented an increase of over $12 million from 1981 figures. This amount includes charitable care rendered by the hospitals and physicians in the medical center, as well as contractual allowances and bad debts. The medical center has provided more than $147 million in unreimbursed care in the last five years.

The information was released Sept. 20 at the annual meeting of the medical center's board of directors. Sponsoring institutions of the medical center are: Barnes Hospitals, Jewish Hospital; Children's Hospital; Central Institute for the Deaf; Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital; and the School of Medicine.

The medical center reported spending $58.1 million on research and $56.4 million for capital improvements. There were 10,953 employees in 1982, for whom salary expenditures totaled $208.3 million.

Desert architecture exhibit on display in Givens Hall

"Spectacular Vernacular: Traditional Desert Architecture from West Africa and Southwest Asia" is currently on display through Oct. 31 in the first floor corridor of Givens Hall.

This Smithsonian Institution's traveling exhibition includes 93 color and 38 black-and-white photographs, along with six maps and schematic drawings, and copious interpretive text. Building techniques are illustrated as well as cooling technologies and their practical modern applications.

This form of traditional desert building is found throughout West Africa and Southwest Asia and consists largely of unbaked, sun-dried earth. Architectural historian Jean-Louis Bourgeois conducted research on the exhibit. Photographs were taken by Carollee Pelos.

According to Bourgeois, the study "illuminates an ecologically sound approach to building that cement is fast replacing. Generally far more expensive than mud and far hotter, cement in the desert is cruel. The exhibition reflects the most progressive thinking in both the Third and Industrialized Worlds. Desert architecture needs to advance back to mud."

The exhibit may be viewed weekdays from 7:50 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Sports department sponsors clinics

The Department of Sports and Recreation is sponsoring three free clinics on weight training, aerobic dance and nutrition in October.

On Wednesday, Oct. 12, a one-hour weight training clinic will be held in the Francis Gym weight room beginning at 7 p.m. On Monday, Oct. 17, a one-hour aerobic dance class for men and women will be held in the Ann Whitney Olin Women's Building gym beginning at 7 p.m. On Monday, Oct. 24, a one-hour diet and nutrition clinic will be held in the north classroom of Francis Gym beginning at 7 p.m.
