Paris in Japan

Yamashita Shintaro, who painted “Woman Reading” in 1908, is one of 26 Japanese artists featured in “Paris in Japan: The Japanese Encounter With European Painting,” an exhibit premiering Oct. 2 to Nov. 22 in Washington University’s Gallery of Art in Steinberg Hall. The exhibit will present to Americans for the first time the work of these Japanese artists who transformed the visual culture of late 19th- and early 20th-century Japan with Western-style oil painting.

Libraries’ preservation efforts supported by three-year grant

The Olin Library System of Washington University has received a $200,000 grant from the Burlington Northern Foundation to support preservation efforts in the University’s library system. The Burlington Northern Foundation represents the Burlington Northern Railroad Co. The gift is part of the ALLIANCE FOR WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY, a multi-year program of classroom courses and field training.

Dealing with a deficiency

Program aims to train women in social service administration

The George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington University has received a $500,000 grant commitment to establish the Bettie Schroth Johnson Program in Social Service Management, according to Shanti K. Khinduka, dean of the school. The gift includes a $400,000 commitment from Bertie and James L. Johnson Jr., with an anonymous donor contributing the additional $100,000. As part of their commitment to social work schools, the Johnsons have established a $100,000 challenge fund to be earned by alumni and friends of the school. The $400,000 commitment is to be fulfilled over a four-year period.

The grant will provide the support needed to train women for significant administrative responsibilities in social service agencies. The program will begin in the fall of 1988.

The conference will be divided into three sessions. Session One, titled “The Sixth Amendment Right to Criminal Jury Trial,” will be held from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Session Two, titled “The Seventh Amendment Right to Civil Jury Trial,” will be held from 1 to 2:30 p.m. The last session, titled “The Sixth Amendment Right to Counsel,” will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

Legal experts from Washington University and across the country will speak at the conference. The Washington University participants will be Dorey Ellis Jr., J.D., dean and professor at the law school, and law professors Kathleen F. Brady, J.D., and Richard B. Kuhns, S.J.D. John S. Baker, a professor at the Louisiana State University Law Center, and James McClellan, president of the Center for Judicial Studies, will serve as conference moderators.

In celebration of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, a conference will be held beginning at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 15, in room 316, at the law school (Mudd Hall). The conference, titled “Original Intent and the Current Understanding of the Sixth and Seventh Amendments of The Bill of Rights,” is free and open to the public.

The conference is jointly sponsored by the Washington University School of Law; the St. Louis University School of Law and the Center for Judicial Studies in Washington, D.C. It is based on the controversial debate regarding the role of ‘original intent’ in constitutional interpretation. Some Supreme Court critics say many of the court’s decisions are contrary to the founding fathers’ intent. Others argue that certain values are so important they should prevail over the Constitution’s language or the framers’ intentions.

The conference will be divided into three sessions. Session One, titled “The Sixth Amendment Right to Criminal Jury Trial,” will be held from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Session Two, titled “The Seventh Amendment Right to Civil Jury Trial,” will be held from 1 to 2:30 p.m. The last session, titled “The Sixth Amendment Right to Counsel,” will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

Legal experts from Washington University and across the country will speak at the conference. The Washington University participants will be Dorey Ellis Jr., J.D., dean and professor at the law school, and law professors Kathleen F. Brady, J.D., and Richard B. Kuhns, S.J.D. John S. Baker, a professor at the Louisiana State University Law Center, and James McClellan, president of the Center for Judicial Studies, will serve as conference moderators.

The other participants are: U.S. District Judge Morris S. Arnold of the Western District of Arkansas; William Gangi, chairman and professor of the government and politics department at St. John’s University in Jamaica, N.Y.; Stephen J. Markman, assistant attorney general for the Office of Legal Policy in Washington, D.C.; Student Affairs, James Johnson, who is vice president of Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., a financial investment firm, has been an active member of the University’s Board of Trustees since his election in 1970. He was named trustee.

Legal experts to discuss founding fathers’ original intent in Bill of Rights
Overlooked aspect

Coach aims to make football fun

Ken Woody's mission is not an easy one.

The new Washington University football coach has the challenge of stopping a streak of eight consecutive losing seasons. In 1978, when the Bears were coached by Chris Gianoulakis, now the team's offensive line coach, Washington went 5-4. Since then, the Red and Green have mustered only 19 victories in eight years.

What can be done to win more than two or three games a season? Well, according to Woody, the ingredients for a winning team might already be in place.

"Right now, our major concern lies in our defensive backfield," says Woody. "With the exception of two returning starters, most of our other defensive backs are first-year players. Of course, that's a concern. I'm pleasantly surprised with the team's over-all talent.

"Of course, it takes more than just good players to have a winning season. Our group is in a position to do what's necessary to turn the program around. We've looked at the films from last year and discussed all talent.

"I think the key to our success lies with the players. We have at Washington State University's football program on the map."

Says Woody: "We should have the kind of offense we were always known for at Washington State. It's going to be wide-open; we're going to do what's necessary to turn the program around. Our primary question prior to the start of the season was 'Can we run with what we want to run here?' Our coaching staff quickly found out that our kids are able to relate to this offensive concept and execute it.'"

When asked if there was a key rule of the season, the Bears' 39-year-old coach promptly replied with an answer:

"We have to get off to a good start," says Woody. "We need to play well against the teams that are similar to us and those schools just happen to fall into the first half of this year's schedule. The final four or five games of the year could be very difficult." Woody also has emphasized that the Bears must become a better tackling team. If the tackling improves, then he feels the Bears have a strong chance of becoming a good football team.

Woody concludes: "Playing well is the key, much more so than winning. Win or lose in our opener against Chicago, if we play well, I'll feel very happy. If we continue to improve and get better each week, we will have done our job."

One way Woody intends to make football fun at Washington is the implementation of a new offense. The Bears will pack up their conservative, power-oriented offense and replace it with a wide-open, passing option game — the same offense that put Washington State University's football program on the map.

"We should have the kind of offense we were always known for at Washington State. It's going to be wide-open; we're going to be a good option team, and we're going to throw the ball well. Our primary question prior to the start of the season was 'Can we run with what we want to run here?' Our coaching staff quickly found out that our kids are able to relate to this offensive concept and execute it.'"

When asked if there was a key rule of the season, the Bears' 39-year-old coach promptly replied with an answer:

"We have to get off to a good start," says Woody. "We need to play well against the teams that are similar to us and those schools just happen to fall into the first half of this year's schedule. The final four or five games of the year could be very difficult." Woody also has emphasized that the Bears must become a better tackling team. If the tackling improves, then he feels the Bears have a strong chance of becoming a good football team.

Woody concludes: "Playing well is the key, much more so than winning. Win or lose in our opener against Chicago, if we play well, I'll feel very happy. If we continue to improve and get better each week, we will have done our job."

Singletons will lead fashion design

Jeff Singleton will lead the fashion design department at 1975 and advanced tailoring techniques in 1972.

"Instead of simply creating fashion as I have done before, I would like to enjoy the new challenge of creating fashion creators," Singleton says. "We are planning many exciting things for this semester, including entering design competitions around the globe and participating in fashion shows as far away as Paris, France," he adds.

A native of Louisiana, Singleton earned a master's degree in costume design from Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan., in 1970. He received his bachelor's degree in clothing and related arts in 1966 from Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University), Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Singleton will lead fashion design

Jeff Singleton will lead the fashion design department at Washington University, according to Roger DesRosiers, dean of the University's School of Fine Arts. Singleton is visiting associate professor of art.

Singleton has broad experience in the art world, including designing men's and women's clothing and creating wearable art (one-of-a-kind, hand-painted garments). In 1982 he was the editor of 'Change,' the arts, entertainment, society and fashion section of The St. Louis American newspaper.

From 1981 to 1984 he was the resident designer for the St. Louis Black Repertory Company. He was a part-time instructor in fashion design at the School of Fine Arts in 1982. He also taught the seniors' fashion design workshop (preparation for industry) in 1975 and advanced tailoring techniques in 1972.

"Instead of simply creating fashion as I have done before, I would like to enjoy the new challenge of creating fashion creators," Singleton says. "We are planning many exciting things for this semester, including entering design competitions around the globe and participating in fashion shows as far away as Paris, France," he adds.

A native of Louisiana, Singleton earned a master's degree in costume design from Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan., in 1970. He received his bachelor's degree in clothing and related arts in 1966 from Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University), Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Singleton will lead fashion design

Jeff Singleton will lead the fashion design department at Washington University, according to Roger DesRosiers, dean of the University's School of Fine Arts. Singleton is visiting associate professor of art.

Singleton has broad experience in the art world, including designing men's and women's clothing and creating wearable art (one-of-a-kind, hand-painted garments). In 1982 he was the editor of 'Change,' the arts, entertainment, society and fashion section of The St. Louis American newspaper.

From 1981 to 1984 he was the resident designer for the St. Louis Black Repertory Company. He was a part-time instructor in fashion design at the School of Fine Arts in 1982. He also taught the seniors' fashion design workshop (preparation for industry) in 1975 and advanced tailoring techniques in 1972.

"Instead of simply creating fashion as I have done before, I would like to enjoy the new challenge of creating fashion creators," Singleton says. "We are planning many exciting things for this semester, including entering design competitions around the globe and participating in fashion shows as far away as Paris, France," he adds.

A native of Louisiana, Singleton earned a master's degree in costume design from Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan., in 1970. He received his bachelor's degree in clothing and related arts in 1966 from Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University), Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Singleton will lead fashion design

Jeff Singleton will lead the fashion design department at Washington University, according to Roger DesRosiers, dean of the University's School of Fine Arts. Singleton is visiting associate professor of art.

Singleton has broad experience in the art world, including designing men's and women's clothing and creating wearable art (one-of-a-kind, hand-painted garments). In 1982 he was the editor of 'Change,' the arts, entertainment, society and fashion section of The St. Louis American newspaper.

From 1981 to 1984 he was the resident designer for the St. Louis Black Repertory Company. He was a part-time instructor in fashion design at the School of Fine Arts in 1982. He also taught the seniors' fashion design workshop (preparation for industry) in 1975 and advanced tailoring techniques in 1972.

"Instead of simply creating fashion as I have done before, I would like to enjoy the new challenge of creating fashion creators," Singleton says. "We are planning many exciting things for this semester, including entering design competitions around the globe and participating in fashion shows as far away as Paris, France," he adds.

A native of Louisiana, Singleton earned a master's degree in costume design from Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan., in 1970. He received his bachelor's degree in clothing and related arts in 1966 from Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University), Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Singleton will lead fashion design

Jeff Singleton will lead the fashion design department at Washington University, according to Roger DesRosiers, dean of the University's School of Fine Arts. Singleton is visiting associate professor of art.

Singleton has broad experience in the art world, including designing men's and women's clothing and creating wearable art (one-of-a-kind, hand-painted garments). In 1982 he was the editor of 'Change,' the arts, entertainment, society and fashion section of The St. Louis American newspaper.

From 1981 to 1984 he was the resident designer for the St. Louis Black Repertory Company. He was a part-time instructor in fashion design at the School of Fine Arts in 1982. He also taught the seniors' fashion design workshop (preparation for industry) in 1975 and advanced tailoring techniques in 1972.

"Instead of simply creating fashion as I have done before, I would like to enjoy the new challenge of creating fashion creators," Singleton says. "We are planning many exciting things for this semester, including entering design competitions around the globe and participating in fashion shows as far away as Paris, France," he adds.

A native of Louisiana, Singleton earned a master's degree in costume design from Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan., in 1970. He received his bachelor's degree in clothing and related arts in 1966 from Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University), Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Singleton will lead fashion design

Jeff Singleton will lead the fashion design department at Washington University, according to Roger DesRosiers, dean of the University's School of Fine Arts. Singleton is visiting associate professor of art.

Singleton has broad experience in the art world, including designing men's and women's clothing and creating wearable art (one-of-a-kind, hand-painted garments). In 1982 he was the editor of 'Change,' the arts, entertainment, society and fashion section of The St. Louis American newspaper.

From 1981 to 1984 he was the resident designer for the St. Louis Black Repertory Company. He was a part-time instructor in fashion design at the School of Fine Arts in 1982. He also taught the seniors' fashion design workshop (preparation for industry) in 1975 and advanced tailoring techniques in 1072.

"Instead of simply creating fashion as I have done before, I would like to enjoy the new challenge of creating fashion creators," Singleton says. "We are planning many exciting things for this semester, including entering design competitions around the globe and participating in fashion shows as far away as Paris, France," he adds.

A native of Louisiana, Singleton earned a master's degree in costume design from Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan., in 1970. He received his bachelor's degree in clothing and related arts in 1966 from Tuskegee Institute (now Tuskegee University), Tuskegee Institute, Ala.
Iver Bernstein, Ph.D., assistant professor of history, received a 1987-88 American Council of Learned Societies Fellowship for Recent Recipients of the Ph.D. and Postdoctoral National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Stipend to support his work on the Bantam Massacre City Data of Riots of 1865: Their Significance in American Society and Politics.

Harold M. Blumenfeld, professor of music, has been chosen as an American Library Association Author and Publishers (ASCP) Award winner for 1987. In a letter, ASCP President Morton said the awards reflect "our continuing commitment to assist and encourage writers of serious music." Gould said the awards are granted by an independent panel and are based upon the "unique prestige value of each writer's catalog and the performance of his compositions.

Gregory Claeys, Ph.D., associate professor of history, recently presented a paper at the Study of Labour History, Great Britain, on "Thomas Paine and the Secularization of Politics and Religion," and to the Seminar Series on Modern British History, the Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington, D.C., on "Godwin and the French Revolutionary Debate Revisited."

Tori Clemens, head volleyball coach, has been elected to serve on the 1987 Division III Russell Athletic Academic selection committee. Along with five other Division III head coaches, her responsibilities include observing any presidem mittee throughout the season for potential nomination in November.

John B. Ervin, Ed.D., former dean of the School of Continuing Education and Summer School (now University College), received a Pioneer in Education Award for the 26th annual school administrators conference sponsored by the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education in Jefferson City. Each year, the conference has honored several Missouri "pioneers" for their service and contributions to public education. Last year the John B. Ervin Scholarship Program was established at Washington University to award scholarships to black students.

Charles Kilo, M.D., associate professor of clinical medicine and Joseph R. Williamson, M.D., professor of pathology, Department of Pathology, have just completed a new book for diabetics and their families, titled Diabe tes — The Facts That Let You Reject Control of Your Life. Published by John Wiley and Sons Inc., the 196-page book is a scientific look in lay terms on the body, the past and current research in diabetes; and practical information on diet, exercise, treatment, education and nutrition, to impotence and finding the best medical care.

Saulo Klahr, M.D., Joseph Friedman Professor of Renal Disease, Department of Internal Medicine, and the immediate past president of the American Society of Nephrology, was elected to the Council and Management Committee of the International Society of Nephrology (ISN) at the meeting of the ISN, which was held the last week of July in London.

Lyn Pankoff, Ph.D., professor of quantitative business analysis, has been named by Robert L. Van Vreden, D.B.A., dean of the School of Business and Public Administration, to serve as faculty advisor for the program. Pankoff will continue to serve as associate dean for academic computing at the school.

Helen W. Power, Ph.D., adjunct assistant professor of Women's Studies, addressed a recent meeting of the Midwest Women's Studies Association in St. Louis. She spoke on "Role Models in Literature and Life" and concluded with a round-table discussion. "What is the Canon of Women's Literature?" Power's book, The American Essay, co-authored with Robert D'Antonio, has just been published by Lyle Stuart. A guide to writing the college application essay, the book includes examples from successful candidates, including Washington University students.

Martha Storandt, Ph.D., professor of psychology, was an invited speaker at a two-week workshop on decision making and psychological biases enter into decision-making.

Sara Sugerman, acting director of student activities, participated this summer in the Summer Institute for Women in Higher Education Administration, sponsored by Bryn Mawr College and HERS, Mid-America. During the four-week residence program, she received training in budgeting, finance, long-range planning, human relations skills, administrative computing, organizational management, and academic governance.

Carl Wellman, Ph.D., professor of philosophy, recently participated in the 13th World Congress of the International Association for the Philosophy of Law and Social Philosophy, held Aug. 20-26 in Kobe, Japan. He lectured on "Seeking Justice and Human Rights" as one of the eight main speakers. He also chaired a working group dealing with issues concerning biomedical ethics and the law. Also, he was elected a vice president of the congress.

Dona M. Heeney, a recent graduate of the St. Louis Community College at Florissant Valley, has won a two- year full tuition scholarship to Washington University. The University's Women's Society awarded the honor ary scholarship for the 12th consecutive year.

The Women's Society is awarded on the basis of academic record and achievement outside the classroom, although no evidence of financial need. Dona M. Heeney was selected from a field of 80 candidates and had a 3.86 grade point average on a 4.0 scale at Florissant Valley. She received an associate of arts degree from the community college on May 15.

An accomplished photographer whose work has been displayed at the Huntington Art Museum, Heeney enrolled in Washington's School of Fine Arts this fall to study photography.

The Women's Society, which was established in 1965 and has a membership of more than 700 women, than 10,000 members, provides various services to students, faculty and staff at Washington University.

New appointments in counsel's office

Leslie Chambers Strohm has been promoted to associate general counsel, and Keith D. Patten has been named assistant general counsel in the Office of the General Counsel at Washington University.

Strohm has been assistant general counsel at Washington since 1984. In her new position, she primarily works in the legal areas of contracts, personnel, taxation and health law.

Strohm graduated from the University of Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor, Mich. The Indiana native received her undergraduate degree in mathematics from DePauw University in Greencastle, Ind.

Four business faculty receive grants

Four business school faculty have been awarded grants. They are Don L. Coursey, Ph.D., associate professor of business economics; Gary Miller, Ph.D., professor of political economy; Gregory Wayne, Ph.D., associate professor of accounting; Barry R. Weingast, J.D., associate professor of political economics.

Coursey was awarded a three-year grant from the Russell Sage Foundation of New York for a work group on decision making and experimental economics. He will select and coordinate a small group of scholars who will conference themselves with the manner in which psychological biases enter into economic decision making.

Miller received a $35,000 grant from a private foundation, which insists on remaining anonymous.

Washington University faculty and staff news and announcements.

Have you done something noteworthy?

Have you: Presented a paper! Won an award? Received a scholarship? Been promoted or elected an of ficer of a professional organization?

The Washington University Record will help spread the good news. Contributions ranging from faculty and staff scholarly or professional activities are gladly accepted and appreciated.

Send a brief note with your full name, highest-ranking position, affiliation, title and phone number, along with a description of your noteworthy activity to News, Campus Box 1070. Please include a phone number.

Paul Patten most recently was employed in the legal department of The May Department Stores Co. in St. Louis. He now works within the areas of employee benefits, corporate and business law and business disputes. Among his responsibilities at Washington are working in the legal areas of leases and contracts, employee relations, taxation and health care.

A native of Chicago, Patten graduated from the University of Michigan and attended the DePaul Law School. He earned a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Illinois in Urbana-Champaign.

Women's Society awards scholarship

Donna M. Heeney, a recent graduate of the St. Louis Community College at Florissant Valley, has won a two-year full tuition scholarship to Washington University. The University's Women's Society awarded the honorary scholarship for the 12th consecutive year.

The Women's Society is awarded on the basis of academic record and achievement outside the classroom, although no evidence of financial need. Dona M. Heeney was selected from a field of 80 candidates and had a 3.86 grade point average on a 4.0 scale at Florissant Valley. She received an associate of arts degree from the community college on May 15.

An accomplished photographer whose work has been displayed at the Huntington Art Museum, Heeney enrolled in Washington's School of Fine Arts this fall to study photography.

The Women's Society, which was established in 1965 and has a membership of more than 700 women, than 10,000 members, provides various services to students, faculty and staff at Washington University.

Washington University faculty and staff news and announcements.

Have you done something noteworthy?

Have you: Presented a paper! Won an award? Received a scholarship? Been promoted or elected an of ficer of a professional organization?

The Washington University Record will help spread the good news. Contributions ranging from faculty and staff scholarly or professional activities are gladly accepted and appreciated.

Send a brief note with your full name, highest-ranking position, affiliation, title and phone number, along with a description of your noteworthy activity to News, Campus Box 1070. Please include a phone number.
Thursday, Sept. 10

Friday, Sept. 11

Monday, Sept. 14
11 a.m. Dept. of Computer Science Seminar, "Hardware Verification by Mechanical Proof." Kevin A. Hunt, Jr., Computational Logic Inc. 509C Bryan.

Tuesday, Sept. 15
10 a.m.-4 p.m. Constitutional Law Conference, "Original Intent and the Sixth and Seventh Amendments." This conference is from 10 to 11:30 a.m., the second from 1:30 to 3 p.m., and the third from 3 to 4:10 p.m. Muld Hudd Hall.

11:30 a.m. Democratic Socialists of America Lecture, "What is Democratic Socialism?" Glenn Conroy, WU prof. of anatomy. 1200 Building.

Wednesday, Sept. 16
11 a.m. Assembly Series Lecture, "Changing Pictures of the Reformation in the 20th Century." Janosband Feliksim, Sterling Professor of History, University of California, Los Angeles.

4 p.m. Dept. of Physics Colloquium, "The Dimensionality of the World and Its Parts." Peter Freund, prof. of physics, Enrico Fermi Institute, U. of Chicago.

4 p.m. WU School of Medicine Lecture Series on Alzheimer's Disease, "Social and Legal Implications of Dementia." Emily Lihatge, WU research instructor in neurobiology. Barbara Markus, WU dept. manager of research, Enrico Fermi Institute, U. of Chicago.

Thursday, Sept. 17
2:30 p.m. Dept. of Mechanical Engineering Colloquium, "Dual Vector Calculus as a Tool for the Kinematics of Open Chain Systems." James A. Schaf, instructor, dept. of mechanical engineering, U. of California-Davis. 100 Cripples Hall.

8 p.m. Dept. of Germanic Languages and Literatures Colloquium, "Richard Exner," prof. of German, U. of California-Santa Barbara. 610 McKinney.

8 p.m. Dept. of English Colloquium with Wayne Fields, WU assoc. prof. of English. Harvey Loucks, Dist. Hall.

Friday, Sept. 18

4 p.m. Dept. of Music Lecture, "Tempo, Brandenburgers and Moons." John Tyrell, U. of Nottingham, Belgium.

Thursday, Sept. 7
4:30 p.m., "Women's Club Coffee in University House," 6420 Forsyth Blvd. Ralph E. Morrow, University historian, former provost and emeritus prof. of history, will speak on "Washington University: Historical Highlights." For more info., call Winifred Demers, 727-8985, or Elizabeth Nicholas, 727-7965.

Friday, Sept. 11
Noon. Alcoholics Anonymous, 11 a.m., self-help group, answering the question: "Am I an alcoholic?" 11 a.m., self-help group, answering the question: "Am I an alcoholic?" 11 a.m., self-help group, answering the question: "Am I an alcoholic?" 11 a.m., self-help group, answering the question: "Am I an alcoholic?"

Saturday, Sept. 12
9 a.m.-3 p.m. University College Workshop, "Strategies for Academic Success." Mary Seager, dept. of reading, St. Louis Community College at Florissant Valley. Cost is $30. To register, call 889-6701.

Sunday, Sept. 13
8 a.m. B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation Shabbat Dinner Program, "Jewish Tales of the Supernatural: Stories They Never Taught You in Sunday School." Services at 5-45, dinner at 6:30. Cost is $100. Register at 889-6701.

Monday, Sept. 14
7 p.m. WU Filmboard Series, "Empire of Passion." 207 Mallinckrodt Center.

Tuesday, Sept. 15
7-9 p.m. Auditions for the Performing Arts Dept. production of "The National Health: Or Nurse Norton's Affair." 207 Mallinckrodt Center. To schedule an appointment for an audition, call 889-4795. The play will be performed Nov. 15-16 at Edison Theatre.

Wednesday, Sept. 16
7 p.m. WU Filmboard Series, "Don Quixote de la Mancha." 207 Mallinckrodt Center.

Thursday, Sept. 17
4:30 p.m., "Women's Tennis," WU vs. Maryville College. Tennis Center.

Saturday, Sept. 18
7 p.m., Football, WU vs. University of Chicago. Francis Field.

Midnight. WU Filmboard Series, "Shadows Before Breakfast." Brown Hall.

Monday, Sept. 14
7 and 9 p.m. WU Filmboard Series, "A Total of 16 universities competed in the tournament, including Cornell, Georgetown and the University of Pennsylvania. In College Bowl, billed as "the academic all-star team," a quiz game format is used to recognize students' intellectual achievement and help them learn the value of group participation. To receive your students' scores on the tests correctly questions on topics like history, literature, current events, science and art.

Friday, Sept. 11
4 p.m. Women's Tennis, WU vs. Maryville College. Tennis Center.

Saturday, Sept. 12
7 p.m. Football, WU vs. University of Chicago. Francis Field.

Tuesday, Sept. 15
7 p.m. Volleyball, WU vs. MacMurray College. Athletic Complex.

Friday, Sept. 18
4 and 5:30 p.m. Soccer, WU vs. Augustana College. Francis Field.

Saturday, Sept. 19
10:30 a.m. Women's Tennis, WU vs. Evansville. Tennis Center.

11 a.m. Football, WU vs. Rose-Hulman Institute. Francis Field.

Carnegie Hall.

Thursday, Sept. 7
7-10 p.m. "Women's Club Coffee in University House," 6420 Forsyth Blvd. Ralph E. Morrow, University historian, former provost and emeritus prof. of history, will speak on...