2008

Promoting consumer health resources through new employee orientation

Misty Carney

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.wustl.edu/becker_pubs

Part of the Medicine and Health Sciences Commons

Recommended Citation

This Presentation Poster is brought to you for free and open access by the Becker Medical Library at Digital Commons@Becker. It has been accepted for inclusion in Becker Library Publications and Presentations by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Becker. For more information, please contact vanam@wustl.edu.
Connecting with New Employees:
Promoting Consumer Health Resources through New Employee Orientation

Objective:
- To increase new employee awareness and use of the library as a resource for personal health questions.

Methods:
- Weekly 10 minute presentation during the new employee orientation organized by HR. All staff and Post-Docs attend orientation.

Results:
- Reached an average of 23 employees per orientation.
- After presenting at the new employee orientation for two months, visits to the consumer health page increased by 74%.
- No increase in requests for librarian assistance with consumer health questions.
- Received an invitation to participate in HR-sponsored campus-wide employee health fair.

Conclusions:
- Initial results are promising in regard to increasing employee awareness and use of online consumer health resources.
- Will continue to participate in new employee orientation, but seek to strengthen and expand our collaboration with HR in order to reach current as well as new employees and to reinforce awareness of consumer health resources and services.

Misty Carney
Bernard Becker Medical Library
Washington University School of Medicine
St. Louis, Missouri