J. T. HODGEN, M. D., Dean.

The Faculty of the St. Louis Medical College has perfected its arrangements for a summer course of Lectures, which will COMMENCE APRIL 1st, AND TERMINATE JULY 1st, 1871.

As will be seen from the attached programme, comprising, as it does, besides other subjects, those of Microscopy, Ophthalmoscopy, Laryngoscopy, Gynecology, this course is designed to be eminently Clinical. Its object will be to teach the student the symptomatology and therapeutics of disease, and to make him practically familiar with all the physical means of diagnosis. The vast clinical resources of the St. Louis Hospital, the City Hospital, St. Ann's Asylum, and other medical institutions of the city, will be utilized to their full extent for the elucidation of the subjects to be treated. We would earnestly request all students who can make it convenient to attend this course, knowing that the great facilities which will be furnished them for clinical observation will amply reward them

THE FEE FOR THE ENTIRE COURSE WILL BE TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS.

J. T. HODGEN, M. D., Dean,

St. Louis Medical College.

E. F. SMITH, M. D.,

Secretary of the Faculty.

 Persons desiring additional information, will address the Dean or Secretary.
