It's carnival time: Thurtene Carnival, the largest and oldest student-run carnival in the nation, will be held this weekend, April 21 and 22, from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on the campus parking lot at the corner of Millbrook and Skinker boulevards. The carnival will feature more than 60 games and rides for children and adults, as well as some 40 food items. There is no admission fee to the carnival grounds. Net proceeds will go to the Children's United Research Effort (C.U.R.E.), a non-profit organization dedicated to raising funds for cancer research and treatment at St. Louis Children's Hospital. As a special edition to this year's festivities, Sherman S. Senne, one of the oldest living members of Thurtene, the junior men's honorary, will announce the official opening of the carnival during ceremonies April 21. Senne, of St. Louis, is a 1925 graduate of Washington's law school.

New vice chancellor for administration, finance named to succeed Ronald Evens

Richard E. Anderson, Ph.D., director of the Forum for College Financing and professor of higher education at Columbia University in New York, has been appointed vice chancellor for administration and finance at Washington University. Chancellor William H. Danforth has announced. The appointment is effective June 1, 1990.

He succeeds Ronald G. Evens, M.D., who will return to full-time duties as director of the Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology at the School of Medicine. Evens also is head of the Department of Radiology and Elizabeth E. Mallinckrodt Professor of Radiology there.

Anderson has been associated professionally with Columbia University since 1974 when he was named assistant professor in the graduate school of education and coordinator of joint programs in higher education finance with the university's graduate school of business. In 1982 he was appointed chairman and professor of the Department of Higher and Adult Education and, in 1985, he became director of the Forum for College Financing, which is part of a federally funded research center located at the University of Maryland.

Chancellor Danforth said Anderson's appointment represents the culmination of a nationwide search. "Dr. Anderson's credentials are impeccable, and we are extremely fortunate to attract a person with his skills. He is tailored for the position at Washington University and we look forward to his arrival on campus," he said.

Anderson is a nationally recognized lecturer and writer who has published in many academic publications covering a wide range of topics in higher education. He also has served as a consultant to many colleges and universities as well as to state and federal agencies. In his present position as director of the Forum for College Financing, he addresses higher education financing problems in cooperation with a number of leading public and private universities and major investment banks and national accounting and law firms.

A native of New York, Anderson received his bachelor's degree from Stanford University and both his master's in business administration and doctorate from Columbia University in 1972 and 1974, respectively. He is married and has two children.

Louis Sullivan, health and human services secretary, to talk here

Louis W. Sullivan, M.D., secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, will deliver the George Warren Brown School of Social Work Benjamin E. Youngdahl Lecture at 3 p.m. Wednesday, April 25, in Graham Chapel. His talk, part of the Assembly Series, is free and open to the public.

Sullivan, who was nominated by President George Bush, was sworn in as secretary on March 10, 1989, by A. Leon Higginbotham Jr., a U.S. circuit judge. As secretary of health and human services, Sullivan oversees the federal agency responsible for the major health, welfare, food and drug safety, medical research and income security programs serving the American people.

Sullivan came to the department from the Morehouse School of Medicine in Atlanta, Ga., where he was dean and president. In 1975, when he joined the faculty of Morehouse College, his alma mater, Sullivan was named founding dean and director of the college's medical education program. When the medical school became independent from Morehouse College in July 1981, Sullivan was named its first dean and president. The Morehouse School of Medicine became fully accredited in April 1985 and awarded its first 16 medical degrees one month later.

Sullivan received a bachelor of science degree, magna cum laude, from Morehouse College in 1954 and earned his medical degree, cum laude, from Boston University in 1958. His research interests are in hematology and he was a fellow in hematology at the Thorndike Research Laboratories of Harvard Medical School at the Boston City Hospital.

His numerous professional affiliations include election to the National Academy of Sciences and to fellowship in the American College of Physicians. He is a member of the American Medical Association and the National Medical Association. He also served as founding president of the Association of Minority Health Professional Schools.

Among Sullivan's honors are the Boston University Alumni Award for

Louis W. Sullivan

Distinguished Public Service in 1985 and the establishment of an annual lectureship in his honor at the Morehouse School of Medicine in 1980. The National Association of Minority Medical Educators cited him for outstanding contributions to the education of minorities in medicine in 1984. He was a member of then-Vice President George Bush's official 12-member delegation to seven African countries in 1982.

The lecture is named for Benjamin E. Youngdahl, who was dean of the George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington from 1945 to 1962. Youngdahl received national recognition in the field of social work and was an outspoken advocate of civil liberties.

For more information on the lecture, call 889-4620.

Washington correspondent Judy Woodruff will give lecture on 'News in the 90s'

Judy C. Woodruff, chief Washington, D.C., correspondent for "The MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour," will deliver the Adele Chomeau Starbird/Omicron Delta Kappa Honors Lecture at 11 a.m. Wednesday, April 25, in Graham Chapel.

Her talk, titled "News in the 90s," is free and open to the public. The lecture is part of the Assembly Series.

Woodruff also is the anchor of "Frontline With Judy Woodruff," public television's acclaimed weekly documentary series. She will be leaving "Frontline" at the end of this season to devote more time to the "MacNeil/Lehrer" program, which also is on PBS.

Woodruff moderated the 1988 vice presidential debate and covered both the 1984 and 1988 national political conventions and presidential campaigns for "MacNeil/Lehrer." Prior to joining the program, she served as the White House correspondent for NBC News from 1977 to 1982, covering both the Carter and Reagan administrations, as well as the national conventions and presidential campaigns of 1976 and 1980.

In 1982 Woodruff became chief Washington correspondent for NBC's "Today Show." She left NBC News in 1983 to work for "MacNeil/Lehrer."

Woodruff began her association with NBC News in 1975 as a general assignment reporter in Atlanta, Ga. The most significant story of a national interest that Woodruff covered during her Atlanta tenure was the effort of then Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter to win the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination. When Carter announced his candidacy in 1974, few observers gave the inexperienced politician more than an outside chance. Woodruff, however, who had reported on his gubernatorial administration and had followed his pre-primary political strategy closely, knew he was a formidable candidate.

With the grudging approval of her New York editors, she trailed Carter through the campaign's early months. Her diligence paid off, for when Carter began to win one primary after another, she appeared regularly on NBC's nightly network news.

A Duke University graduate, Woodruff wrote an autobiography in 1982, titled This is Judy Woodruff at the White House, in collaboration with Kathy Maxa.

In 1975 Woodruff received an Emmy Award as Outstanding Female Personality from the Atlanta chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. In 1986 "The MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour" was awarded the first Joan Shorenstein Barone Prize by the Washington Radio and Television Correspondents Association for Woodruff's series on defense issues.

The lecture honors the memory of Adele Chomeau Starbird, as well as recognizes the members of Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership honorary at Washington. Starbird, who died in 1987, served as the University's dean of women from 1931 to 1959. For 30 years she wrote a column for the St. Louis Star-Times and later the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

For information, call 889-4620.

This year's School of Fine Arts fashion show will feature the works of three seniors and 12 juniors. The event will be held at 5 and 8 p.m. Thursday, April 26, at the Center of Contemporary Arts, 524 Trinity Ave.

Original designs

61st annual fashion show is set

Dresses for every activity, from shopping to lambada dancing, and menswear for those with a flair for fashion will line the runway in the School of Fine Arts' 61st annual fashion show at 5 and 8 p.m. Thursday, April 26, at the Center of Contemporary Arts (COCA), 524 Trinity Ave., University City.

The fashion show culminates a year's worth of projects for the three seniors and 12 juniors in the fashion design program. Each project focuses on a particular theme or fashion problem. There even will be a special display of clothes to wear while performing the lambada, the latest dance craze.

The event will feature fashions by seniors Maria Afentoullis, Susan Jennings and Judi Saper, and juniors Gina Casalone, Joni Faris, Stacey Feuer, Nancy Freund, Beth Goldstein, Suzy Mueller, Emily Nordmann, Pamela Richardson, Dawn Severini, Jennifer Hoover, Sheila Walker and Anna Whitson.

Two $1,000 scholarships, the Stanley Heller National Association of Menswear Buyers Foundation Award for excellence in menswear design and the Kellwood Scholarship for overall excellence in fashion design, will be awarded at the 8 p.m. show. Kellwood Corp. is a local clothing manufacturer. Prizes also will be awarded for excellence in cocktail dress design and in craftspeople's work, and an outstanding senior designer will be honored.

Aries Productions, a company that designs scenery, lighting, music and staging for most fashion shows in the St. Louis area, will produce the event.

Tickets are $5 for the 5 p.m. show and $8 for the 8 p.m. show and reception following. The Washington University Women's Society is hosting the reception in COCA's dance studio following the later show.

Clothes from the fashion show, and many other original designs by the students, will be sold at the University from 1-7 p.m. Monday, April 30, in Room 200 Bixby Hall.

For more information or to purchase tickets, call 889-6515.

Movements from everyday life highlight dance performance

Susan Marshall & Company, "a fresh, original, powerful voice" in modern dance, will perform at 8 p.m. April 27 and 28 and at 2 p.m. April 29 in Edison Theatre.

As part of Edison's "Meet the Artists!" program, choreographer Marshall, who has toured worldwide, will discuss her work following the Sunday performance.

With works titled "Arms," "Kiss" and "Kin," Marshall clearly is concerned with depicting human relationships. Her choreography is familiar to the general public because she uses movements that are taken from everyday life — walking, running, falling — even kissing.

The Seattle Times says that Marshall's dances "combine wit, compassion, satire, sexuality and a pleasingly 'non-dancey' approach to movement. When you watch this company, you are not so much conscious of watching dancers as you are of seeing real people expressing honest — albeit exaggerated — emotions through dance."

Marshall won a New York Dance and Performance Award ("BESSIE") in 1985. She recently was awarded the prestigious Brandeis University Creative Arts Award. Past recipients of this award include Agnes DeMille, Jerome Robbins, Paul Taylor and Merce Cunningham.

The event is co-sponsored by Dance St. Louis and Edison Theatre's "OVATIONS!" series, which offers a diverse selection of world-renowned performing arts events to the general public.

Tickets are $16 for the general public; $12 for senior citizens and faculty and staff; and $8 for students.

For information, call 889-6543.

Hotchner playwriting winner to be staged

"Had Momma Left a Lullaby ...," the winning script in Washington University's annual A.E. Hotchner playwriting competition, will be performed at 8 p.m. April 26, 27 and 28 in the Drama Studio, Room 208 Mallinckrodt Center.

The play, written by Rick Watson, a graduate student in the University's Writing Program, is set on a small, isolated farm in rural Mississippi. The plot revolves around Penelope, a woman who convinces two men, Hemi and Lester, to kill her father so she can escape his sexual advances, collect his life insurance and begin a new life somewhere else. The men are willing to commit the crime in exchange for her affections.

Brad Schwartz, a graduate student in the Performing Arts Department, will direct the play. The cast features local professional actress Liana Asim as Penelope. Asim performs with the Black Repertory Company and recently formed "Pamoja," an acting company comprising black women.

Other cast members are junior Foster Solomon as Olan, Penelope's father; Tom Jaeger, who graduated last semester, as Hemi, a slow-witted farmhand who is like a surrogate brother to Penelope; and professional actor Wilson Bell as Lester, an insurance salesman.

The competition is funded by a grant given to the University in 1983 by the distinguished writer A.E. Hotchner. A 1940 graduate of the University, Hotchner had taken English 16, a workshop and playwriting class founded by the late William Glasgow Bruce Carson, a professor of drama. Hotchner's grant reinstated the course as Drama 351 and revived the competition connected with the course.

Tickets are $3 for the general public and $2 for senior citizens, students and Washington University faculty and staff. For more information, call 889-6543.

Architecture students host Bauhaus Ball

The School of Architecture's annual Bauhaus Ball will be held April 21 at Mossa Center, 1214 Washington Ave. The event begins at 7:30 p.m. with a charity auction of faculty art and gift certificates from local stores, restaurants and galleries. Dancing begins at 9 p.m.

Proceeds from the silent auction and ticket sales will go to Habitat for Humanity, a non-profit organization that helps build low-cost housing in St. Louis and nationwide.

The ball is named after the Bauhaus, a renowned design school established in Germany in 1919 that spawned an architectural design called functionalism. The formal ball, which is open to the public, was first held in the early 1980s as part of a sophomore design project assigned by Leslie J. Laskey, professor emeritus.

Today the students are not required to hold the ball as part of their course work, but still carry on the tradition.

The event is held twice a year, in the fall and the spring. The design community in St. Louis is invited to the spring ball, which is held off campus.

"This is a wonderful way for architecture students to meet professionals in a relaxed setting," says Mary Jo Burke, one of the graduate students organizing the ball. "We tried to invite all the St. Louis design firms and so far the response has been very good. It's a way for them to support our program and help Habitat for Humanity, too."

This year's event also will feature an exhibit of works by students in the architecture and fine arts schools.

The Bauhaus Ball is sponsored by students in the School of Architecture and the St. Louis chapter of the American Institute of Architects, with honorary chair Courtney Obata.

Tickets are $12 for students, $20 per couple; and $25 for professionals, $35 per couple.

For more information or to make reservations, call 889-6200.

M.F.A. exhibit opens

Paintings, prints, sculptures and ceramics by Washington University School of Fine Arts graduate students will be on exhibit April 20-29 in the Gallery of Art in Steinberg Hall.

An opening reception will be held from 5-7 p.m. April 20 in the gallery.

The free exhibit, titled "M.F.A. II," features the works of seven master's degree candidates: painters Kate Johnson and Thomas Hunt, sculptors Lori Conlon and Jerry Witter, ceramist Young Mok Kim, and printmakers Yvette Dubinsky and Betsy Rupp.

The gallery is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays and 1-5 p.m. weekends. For more information, call 889-4523.

NOTABLES

Garland E. Allen, Ph.D., professor of biology, was re-elected to serve a second term on the board of trustees of the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole, Mass. He presented two seminars at Harvard University: one was on "Eugenics and American Social History" and the other was on "The Split Between Genetics and Embryology, 1900-1940" for the Department of Molecular Biology at Harvard Medical School. Allen also gave an invited paper on "Persistent Methodological Flaws in Theories of Biological Determinism" as part of a day-long symposium on Race, Class and Gender in Science at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in New Orleans. He presented the same paper at a symposium at Yale University this month.

Jennifer Atkinson, adjunct instructor in University College, won the University of Alabama Poetry Prize for her book The Dogwood Tree. The prize included a $1,000 award and publication of the collection of poems by the University of Alabama Press.

Roger N. Beachy, Ph.D., professor of biology, delivered the Kniedson Lecture in Biotechnology at Oregon State University and gave a series of public lectures on plant genetic engineering at the University of Massachusetts and at Pennsylvania State University. Beachy chaired the Gordon Research Conference in New Hampshire on plant molecular biology, and co-chaired the UCLA-CEIBA Symposium on plant gene transfer. In recent months he has given scientific lectures in France, Germany, England (at a NATO conference on virology), Canada, Mexico, Kenya and Japan. Beachy also is serving as a reviewer for CNRS, a national research program in France, and as an adviser for National Open Laboratory at the University of Beijing, led by a former graduate student at Washington University, Z.L. Chen.

Martina Dyer, a graduate student in psychology, has received a pre-doctoral travel award by the International Society for Developmental Psychobiology to attend the annual meeting of that society. The 1990 meeting will be held at King's College of Cambridge, England. The award is based on the excellence of her poster presentation at the society's 1989 meeting held in San Francisco.

Louis A. Gilula, M.D., professor of radiology and director of the musculo-skeletal section at the Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology, was unanimously elected to honorary membership in the American Society for Surgery of the Hand (ASSH). Gilula, the only radiologist among the more than 25 honorary members, has been an important contributor to the ASSH. Under his direction, Mallinckrodt Institute is now a major referral center for problems relating to the wrist and hand.

William C. Jones, J.S.D., professor of law, has written a new book on Basic Principles of Chinese Civil Law, which was published by M.E. Sharpe Inc. of New York.

William A. Murphy Jr., M.D., professor of radiology and co-chief of the musculo-skeletal section at the Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology, was recognized as the most prolific reviewer of manuscripts by Radiology, a leading radiological scientific journal. Murphy, an authority in musculo-skeletal radiology and magnetic resonance imaging, reviewed 83 documents over a two-and-a-half-year period, averaging more than 20 manuscripts per year.

John D. Sprague, Ph.D., professor of political science, is the acting chair of the Department of Political Science while Robert Salisbury, Ph.D., professor of political science, is on leave. Salisbury is a fellow at the Rockefeller Foundation Study and Conference Center in Bellagio, Italy, during the month of April. In May he will present a paper at a conference on pluralism and democracy in Cortona, Italy, sponsored by the Feltrinelli Foundation.

Nancy R. Vosler, Ph.D., assistant professor, and Martha N. Ozawa, Ph.D., Bettie Bofinger Brown Professor of Social Policy, both in the George Warren Brown School of Social Work, co-authored a paper titled "Welfare Reform: Educating for Social Work Practice at Multiple System Levels," which was presented at the Council on Social Work Education's 1990 Annual Program Meeting in Reno, Nev.

March to focus on safety awareness

Washington University students, faculty and staff are invited to join a peaceful march around the campus at 11:30 a.m. on Monday, April 23, beginning in Bowles Plaza as part of a Sexual Assault Awareness Day at the University. The march, dubbed "Safety: Take the First Step," is sponsored by the student Committee Organized for Rape Education (C.O.R.E.) and is being held in conjunction with the national Sexual Assault Awareness Week.

Don Conway-Long, an instructor in the Women's Studies Program, will speak on the appropriate men's response to the sexual assault of women. In addition to the march, members of the group Citizens Against Crime will lead a discussion and give a demonstration on how to create a safer environment at 9 p.m.

in Wohl Center's Friedman Lounge.

Students, faculty and staff members, male or female, should feel safe on campus, says sophomore Meritt Richard, associate coordinator for C.O.R.E. "Safety is everyone's concern," Richard says. This year she hopes more faculty will show their support by marching.

After introductory remarks by Melissa Hensley, C.O.R.E.'s outgoing general coordinator, marchers will walk from the plaza and circle the campus, passing out flyers that list various safety tips, such as attending the upcoming Walk-In-Lay-Down (WILD) semester-ending celebration with a friend instead of going alone.

"We want WILD to be safe and fun for everyone," Richard explains.

For more information about the march, call C.O.R.E. at 889-5994.

Track teams compete for titles

While the men's track and field team will be in search of their third-consecutive conference title, the women's team will attempt to win their first crown at this weekend's University Athletic Association Outdoor Championships. The two-day event will be held April 21-22 at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

Optimism runs particularly high after last month's UAA Indoor Championships, held at the University of Chicago, where the men claimed their third-straight title and the women finished second behind powerful University of Rochester. The men's team claimed victory in 10 of 15 events, including wins in each of the six field events. The women's team won three events and displayed newfound depth by amassing several third-, fourth-, and fifth-place finishes. Thirteen men and five women earned All-Association honors by finishing among the top three in an event.

Heading to the outdoor meet, men's head coach Ted Gibbons and women's head coach Charlie Gatti welcome back the majority of the competitors who were so successful at the indoor championships.

Leading the way for the men's team will be last year's UAA outdoor outstanding performer, junior Allen

Glenn, Atlanta, Ga. Glenn has already qualified for this year's NCAA Division III Championships in the shot put. Joining Glenn as a possible medalist in each of the throwing events will be junior Tim Walker, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Other key competitors will be the UAA's indoor outstanding performer, junior Dave Smith, Suffern, N.Y., sophomore middle distance runner Robert Lindsey, St. Louis, junior sprinter Darrick Warfield, St. Louis, and junior distance runner Dave Watkins, Stillwell, Kan.

The women's effort will be led by senior Karen Sorensen, Washington, Mich., who won both the three-kilometer and the five-kilometer prizes at the UAA indoor meet. Competing in only her second season of track, Sorensen already has qualified for the NCAA Championships in the three-kilometer run this spring.

Joining Sorensen as potential forces in Atlanta will be senior middle distance runner Susan Culican, Frederick, Md., who has been fighting off nagging injuries all spring, freshman jumper Angie Phillips, Three Forks, Mont., sophomore distance runner Julie Hoover, Toledo, Ohio, and freshman sprinter and jumper Melissa McClain, Goldsboro, N.C.

Swimmers, divers cap best season

Leaving a trail of shattered school records in their wake, the Washington University swimming and diving teams capped their finest season ever by cracking the top 20 at the NCAA Division III Championships for the first time in the history of the program.

The men's team finished 16th at its meet, held in Brown Deer, Wis., while the women's team finished 17th in Williamstown, Mass.

After the Bears combined for a 15-2 dual meet record, won a pair of invitational titles and finished strong in the highly competitive University Athletic Association championships, 11 team members extended the season by qualifying for the national meets. The Red and Green contingent of five men and six women was the largest in school history — topping the group of eight that advanced last year.

On the women's side, the Bears' efforts were led by a pair of All-America selections — junior Jennifer Collins, Littleton, Colo., and sophomore Becky Hanking, Shelbyville, Ky. The top eight finishers in each event are tabbed All-America, while the next eight are recognized as honorable mention All-America.

Collins, who last year became the first woman swimmer in Washington history to earn All-America status, repeated the honor by placing eighth with a 2:28.46 clocking in the 200-yard backstroke. Collins also earned honorable mention nods by placing ninth in the 100-yard backstroke, and 11th in the 200-yard individual medley. All three of Collins' outings netted varsity records.

NEWSMAKERS

Washington University faculty and staff make news around the globe. Following is a digest of media coverage they have received during recent weeks for their scholarly activities, research and general expertise.

Higher levels of HDL, the "good" cholesterol, were found in patients with beefy hips and trim waists rather than those with potbellies, according to a study by Richard E. Ostlund Jr., M.D., associate professor of medicine, that was published in the New England Journal of Medicine. An Associated Press story about the study appeared in The New York Times and 70 other major newspapers in the United States and Canada.
