Dr. Baue To Leave For Yale

Dr. Arthur E. Baue, director of the Waldheim Department of Surgery at Jewish Hospital and Harry Edison Professor of Surgery at Washington University School of Medicine, has announced his resignation, effective September 1, to accept the chairmanship of the Department of Surgery at Yale University Medical School in New Haven, Connecticut.

Dr. Baue has directed the clinical, teaching and research activities of the Department of Surgery since his appointment to the position in July, 1968. He was previously associate professor of surgery at the University of Pennsylvania.

Jewish Hospital Board Chairman Lee M. Liberman praised Dr. Baue as “an outstanding educator-physician whose contribution to our patient care, medical education and investigative programs has brought widespread recognition to our institution. Among his numerous achievements, he was instrumental in expanding the Hospital’s ongoing cardiovascular surgery program and was responsible for establishing a shock and trauma unit at Jewish Hospital.

“We will greatly feel his loss to this institution, but congratulate him on this significant advancement and wish him well.”

A selection committee to find a successor for Dr. Baue is being headed by Walter F. Ballinger, M.D.

While a full-time director of surgery is being sought, Thomas H. Covey Jr., M.D., will serve as acting surgeon-in-chief of the Hospital. He will assume his new duties September 1.

Dr. Covey is currently director of Jewish Hospital’s division of general surgery and is assistant professor of surgery at Washington University School of Medicine. A graduate of West Virginia University and Harvard Medical School, he took his internship and residency training at the University of Michigan. He has been with the Hospital since February, 1972.

Hospital Cosponsors Continuing Education Course

The second annual Continuing Education Course in Medicine and Surgery, “Current Concepts in the Practice of Medicine – ‘75,” presented jointly by Jewish Hospital and Washington University School of Medicine May 1-3, was well attended by a large number of local and out-of-state physicians.

The postgraduate seminar was designed to bring new concepts in clinical medicine to the practicing clinician in the community, thus providing him with the opportunity to update his therapeutic and diagnostic techniques.

The three-day symposium was coordinated by Dr. Jerry R. Meyers, in conjunction with Dr. Arthur E. Baue, surgeon-in-chief and Edison Professor of Surgery at Washington University, and Dr. Elmer Brown, dean of Continuing Education at Washington University.

Faculty members from the Hospital’s departments of Medicine and Surgery presented a broad program of medical and surgical topics. The course featured sessions on cardiac, pulmonary, gastrointestinal, vascular, renal and metabolic disease as well as other topics of common interest to the seminar’s participants.

“It was my impression that this symposium was as good, if not better, than most of those which I have attended at college meetings and other societies,” Meyers said in commenting on the program. “The quality and relevancy of each presentation was outstanding and I think was received with the full measure due it.”

The course was acceptable for credit in Category 2 for the Physician’s Recognition Award of the American Medical Association and was also approved for credit by the American Academy of General Practice. All participants, who came from as far as New York and Louisiana, in addition to Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, received a certificate of credit for attendance.

“In planning such a program,” Meyers said, “one requires cooperation from all members involved and I could not have asked for better help than I received from each and every participant in this symposium.

“It is my hope that we will be able to repeat a new and different program next year and again display the outstanding medical and surgical expertise here at The Jewish Hospital of St. Louis,” he concluded.
The Special Cares of Nursing

Rules for Female Nurses (1880)

1. Bring in a scuttle of coal each day.
2. Report every day at 7 a.m., and leave at 8 p.m., except on the Sabbath "on which day you will be off from noon until 2 p.m."
3. Graduate nurses in good standing will be given an evening off each week for church services.
4. Any nurse who smokes, uses liquor, goes to the beauty shop or frequents dance halls will give the director a good reason to suspect her worth, her intentions and integrity.
5. The nurse who performs faithfully and without fault for five years will be given an increase of $.05 a day, providing there are no hospital debts outstanding.

From those first dubious duties, the role of the nurse has evolved into today's responsibilities of primary patient care, of making and acting upon decisions based on knowledge, skill and competence.

The nurse is no longer "doctor's little helper," but a capable trained professional who can and should assess, judge and even question. She works closely with the physician toward the primary objective which is, of course, quality patient care.

As medicine has progressed, so has nursing developed and expanded to meet the changing needs. Nursing at Jewish Hospital includes the multi-talents of a varied group -- R.N.'s, LPN's, nurse aides, orderlies, unit secretaries -- who work together, each a vital link in the chain of patient care.

Jewish Hospital's outstanding Nursing Department is strongly linked to the dynamic leadership of Mrs. Janeane Divelbiss, R.N., diabetic teaching nurse, instructs a patient on the use of insulin. Night supervisor Lenette Cooper, R.N., adds medication to an IV. Julie Harter, LPN, will administer the IV to the patient.

Brenda Ernst, R.N., as well as an emphatic commitment to and belief in continuing education, specialization, evaluation and selectivity.

Whether it's an R.N. taking graduate courses, an LPN being licensed or an aide completing a training program, the key to progressive patient care is continuous learning which makes today's nursing staff more qualified than ever before. In addition to keeping up with new patient care procedures, they must also "read" the sophisticated equipment used in patient care.

Continuing education for staff and patients is the task which falls to Nursing Inservice as the teaching arm of the Nursing Department. The group of Inservice nurses coordinates all the in-Hospital teaching programs which deal with the never-ending advances in medical care. Inservice also conducts an internship program for new R.N. graduates to help them adjust and offers a six-week intensive refresher course for nurses who have been away from the field for as long as 20 years. But mainly, they keep the Jewish Hospital nursing staff updated on new concepts, practices and techniques.

As a community resource, the Inservice department is called upon to demonstrate some of the Hospital's ongoing teaching programs in specialized areas. Two enterostomal therapists, a diabetic teaching nurse, rehabilitation nurses and a cardiovascular clinical nurse -- the Specialists -- visit other hospitals, community organizations and nursing homes to demonstrate programs they've...

Nurses on the floors are teachers as well, as they go about educating the patient about procedures, tests, what to expect, etc., on the premise that an informed patient will be more at ease and better able to care for himself in the future.

Through constant evaluation, Jewish Hospital strives to insure consistent quality patient care. Both R.N.'s, who coordinate all the people working in their areas, and LPN's are tested for weak areas which might be improved. Nurse aides and orderlies, who are responsible for direct patient care, undergo intensive training periods, orientation and evaluations. Unit secretaries as well receive a six-week training course for their involvement with physicians' orders, lab reports, supplies and charts.

In an attempt to try the latest developments in nursing, the Nursing Department recently initiated the primary care nursing method, at one nursing station, to test its effectiveness and feasibility for Jewish Hospital. Through this system, one R.N. is totally responsible for a certain number of patients 24 hours a day from admission to discharge. She formulates an individualized nursing care plan, coordinating the care with the physician and other departments. This newest nursing theory is designed to provide better continuity of care, though the team method of nursing, which is used extensively at Jewish Hospital, continues to be an effective approach.

In the quest to find better ways, the Department of Nursing uses audits to evaluate patient care, to recognize weak areas which need improvement. Liaison meetings with nurses and physicians on the medicine and surgery services result in discussions of problems and solutions, and the procedure committee for nursing care finds R.N.’s and physicians working together to coordinate the rapidly changing procedures which characterize the world of medicine.

All those involved in nursing care at Jewish Hospital are competent, knowledgeable and skilled -- specially trained for a specific job. Since patient care is foremost, the Nursing Department feels that those who administer this care must be the best, above-average and flexible in a profession which changes with every new hopeful discovery.

Selectivity on the part of Jewish Hospital in recruiting nursing staff, and careful screening and testing serve to assure the community that the Hospital maintains the highest quality of patient care through a successful nursing program developed on pride in its accomplishments and promises for continued excellence.
Hospital Receives Distinguished Visitors

Stephen M. Krane, M.D., presented the William Beaumont Visiting Professor lecture sponsored by the Jewish Hospital Department of Medicine in May. Dr. Krane is professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School and head of the Arthritis Unit at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. He spoke at medical grand rounds on “Treatment of Paget’s Disease of Bone” and lectured to physicians and medical students on “Skeletal Manifestations of Heritable Disorders of Connective Tissue” and on “Pathogenesis of Joint Destruction in Rheumatoid Arthritis.”

Frank L. Weakley, M.D., noted surgeon of the Department of Colon and Rectal Surgery at Cleveland Clinic, spoke on “Advances in Surgery of the Large Bowel” at Jewish Hospital during a United Ostomy Association Regional Meeting sponsored by the Ostomy Association of St. Louis and the American Cancer Society.

His visit was in conjunction with the three-day Regional Ostomy Conference in St. Louis in April. The conference opened with an all-day nurses’ workshop on ostomy care followed by sessions which dealt with various aspects concerning the physical and psychological care of the ostomate.

The conference was attended by ostomates and their relatives and friends as well as by medical personnel involved in ostomy care. Those from Jewish Hospital who participated in the program included Dr. Thomas Covey, director of the Division of General Surgery, Elsie Null, R.N., E.T., Elmore Sturm, LPN, E.T., and Dr. Charles Manley, director of the Division of Urology.

Also speaking was Ira J. Kodner, M.D., formerly of the Jewish Hospital staff and currently studying at the Cleveland Clinic.

In April, Richard L. Simmons, M.D., professor of surgery and microbiology at the University of Minnesota Medical School, spoke on “Renal Transplantation at the University of Minnesota.” Dr. Simmons, who is well-known in the areas of kidney transplantation and tumor immunology, also lectured on tumor immunology at a Washington University School of Medicine seminar. His lecture at Jewish Hospital was sponsored by the Division of Nephrology and the Division of Transplantation and Tumor Immunology.

Ronald Fox, Ph.D., professor and coordinator of education and training for the Division of Psychology, Department of Psychiatry at the Medical School of Ohio State University, served as a visiting lecturer sponsored by the Hospital’s Department of Psychiatry. He spoke at grand rounds on “Family Therapy: Current Research and Practice.”

The Jewish Hospital Waldheim Department of Surgery and Washington University School of Medicine recently hosted two visiting professors who presented lectures to the medical staff, house staff and medical students.

Donald Silver, M.D., W. Alton Jones Distinguished Professor of Surgery and chairman of the Department of Surgery at the University of Missouri School of Medicine, lectured in May on “Pathogenesis and Management of Thromboembolic Disorders.”

John S. Spratt Jr., M.D., chief surgeon and director of Cancer Research at Ellis Fischel State Cancer Hospital at Columbia, Missouri, spoke on “Operations, Research and Surgical Departments” in June.
New Diagnostic Equipment Performs Latest Eye Tests

With the recently completed ocular electrophysiology laboratory, the Jewish Hospital Ophthalmology Department can now perform the latest diagnostic tests for all kinds of problems within the retina and the visual centers of the brain. It’s the first completed laboratory of its kind in the St. Louis area and the surrounding 250 miles.

These electrophysiologic tests have been developed through recent advances in electronics technology which allow precise measurements of those body functions which are accompanied by changes in electric potentials. Like the heart and the brain, visual processes are also accompanied by electrical impulses which are measurable.

When light strikes the eye, it is focused by the cornea and lens and strikes the retina – the complex of nerve cells which start the process. The visual impulse travels from the retina to the occipital cortex of the brain and each step of the process is accompanied by electric changes which can be measured. The electric currents have been correlated with function and can be used to diagnose a wide variety of disease.

The most common electrophysiologic test used clinically in ophthalmology is the electroretinogram (ERG) which is recorded by placing a contact lens electrode on the eye, or small metal electrodes near the eye. A response is seen each time the eye is stimulated by light.

By using appropriate conditions of light and dark adaptation and selected colored filter, it is possible to separately examine the cone cells which see color and fine vision and the rod cells which give us night vision.

The test is used in degenerative and inherited diseases such as retinitis pigmentosa. It is used when visual loss cannot be explained by a routine examination or when the back of the eye cannot be seen and a surgical decision rests on whether any nerve function remains.

Another test is called the Visual Evoked Response (VER) which measured activity over the area of the brain responsible for vision. This test is used to diagnose visual problems occurring in the connecting pathways from the retina to the brain. Diseases amenable to such study are optic neuritis, multiple sclerosis, brain lesions, etc.

With the development of standardized, sophisticated stimulating apparatus, it should be possible in the near future to objectively measure sharpness and visual fields using the VER, thus providing a modality for visual assessment in patients who are not verbal (the young, mentally retarded, comatose). Research applications of the VER include analyses of how we perceive color and how the two eyes work together.

Nursing Student Activity Chosen For Presentation

A slide demonstration of Jewish Hospital School of Nursing students engaged in nutrition learning activities has been chosen as part of a presentation given by the St. Louis District Dairy Council to the National Dairy Council at its national convention in Kansas City.

The demonstration served to show how various special interest groups have utilized the learning ideas in nutrition education developed by the St. Louis District Dairy Council.

One of the learning activities the students participated in involved choosing a meal plan for a diabetic patient from a mock cafeteria line of food models.

Participating in the demonstration were Connie Pritchard, nutrition instructor, Judith Hill, nursing instructor, and Debbie George, Diane Hunt, Gayle Crick, Dee Patty, Rebecca Ashcraft, Jenny Broom, Sue Niemoeller, Level II medical-surgical nursing students.
John S. Meyer, M.D., spoke on “Labeling Index of Human Mammary Carcinoma” to the American Society of Experimental Pathologists in Atlantic City in April.

Kenneth L. Russ, Ph.D., spoke on “Biofeedback: Research, Theory and Clinical Applications” at the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation in March, and at Lutheran Hospital Community Mental Health Center, to the Greater St. Louis Hypnosis Society and at the Psychiatry Resident Seminar at Washington University School of Medicine in April.

Nathan M. Simon, M.D., spoke on “Biofeedback: An Experimental Approach to Control of Hypertension” and “Hypertension: The Silent Killer, Detection and Control” at the Day of Cardiology for Nurses sponsored by the St. Louis Heart Association Nursing Committee in April. He also spoke on “Current Status of the Smoking Cessation Program” at the Jewish Hospital Alumni Association 2nd Annual Scientific Program in May.

Herman M. Meyer, M.D., moderated a session at the American College of Angiology meeting in San Juan in February. He is president-elect of the organization.

Jack Hartstein, M.D., was invited to be the ophthalmological speaker at the meeting of the New Orleans Graduate Medical Assembly in April. He spoke on “Contrasting Methods of Cataract Surgery” and “Lens Implantation Surgery.” He also taught a course in lens implant surgery at the Society for Contemporary Ophthalmology in Miami in March. Dr. Hartstein is corresponding secretary of the Contact Lens Association of Ophthalmologists, Inc.

Calvin H. Weiss, D.D.S., has been named regional vice president of the American Association of Hospital Programs in Dentistry and has been appointed to the committee on hospital dentistry of the St. Louis Dental Society. He was also elected to the board of directors and appointed to the executive committee of Beverly Farm Foundation, Godfrey, Illinois, a school for mentally retarded children.

Gustave L. Davis, M.D., spoke to the ENT Club of St. Louis and to the Missouri branch of the American Society for Microbiology at Columbia, Missouri on “Cytomegalovirus Infection of the Inner Ear.”

Charles Manley, M.D., presented a paper on “Prognostic Factors in Spontaneous Resolution of Reflux in Girls” to the American Urological Association in Miami in May. He also spoke on “Urological Evaluation of Patient with Urinary Tract Infections” and “Acute Renal Failure” at a continuing education conference on Update in Renal Disease at Washington University School of Medicine in April.

Paul Lowenstein, M.D., moderated a session at the American College of Angiology meeting in San Juan in February.

Norman J. Matulef, Ph.D., spoke on “Psychological Problems of Adolescence” to the Creve Coeur chapter of ORT.

Sven G. Eliasson, M.D., Ph.D., coauthored an article on “Objective Evaluation of Repeated Passive Stretch in Spastic Man” which appeared in Neurology.

Addie Wiggins, R.N., B.S., coauthored an article on “Evaluation of Nursing Assessment and Intervention in the Surgical ICU” which appeared in the March issue of Nursing Clinics of North America.

Arthur E. Baue, M.D., surgeon-in-chief, has been named to the board of directors and examiner of the American Board of Surgery. He also received an alumni achievement award at the annual meeting of Westminster College’s National Alumni Association in Fulton, Missouri. He was graduated summa cum laude.

Rose E. Boyarsky, Ph.D., attended the annual meeting of the Missouri Psychological Association in Kansas City in April. She is a member-at-large.

Franz U. Steinberg, M.D., spoke on “Dantrolene Sodium in the Treatment of Spasticity Associated with Spinal Cord Injury” at Stanford University Spinal Cord Center in April.

I.B. Horwitz, M.D., participated in a seminar on “Surgical Techniques of the Marmor Modular Knee” in Los Angeles in February.

Cary Presant, M.D., spoke on “Management of Disseminated Breast Cancer” at the UCLA Harbor General Campus in April.

Medical Staff Promotions At Washington University

They are: Bernard Adler, associate professor of clinical otolaryngology; Martin Bergmann, associate professor of clinical surgery (cardiothoracic surgery); Harold M. Cutler, associate professor of clinical otolaryngology; Arnold Dankner, assistant professor of clinical medicine.

Morris Davidson, associate professor of clinical otolaryngology; Ralph J. Graff, associate professor of clinical surgery; Marvin E. Levin, associate professor of clinical medicine; Morris D. Marcus, associate professor of clinical medicine (dermatology); Jerry R. Meyers, assistant professor of clinical surgery.

Marvin R. Mishkin, assistant professor of clinical surgery (orthopedic surgery); Helen E. Nash, associate professor of clinical pediatrics; G. Charles Oliver Jr., professor of medicine; Mohammed M. Sayeed, associate professor of surgical physiology; Morton E. Smith, professor of ophthalmology and professor of pathology.

"Every day is a gift, a jewel. When I wake up, the sun looks a little brighter, the day a little rosier," said Marvella Bayh in expressing her view of life following her well-publicized mastectomy three and a half years ago.

The wife of Indiana Senator Birch Bayh was speaking about breast cancer to a packed auditorium at a public program March 13 sponsored by the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary and the American Cancer Society. Dr. Arthur E. Baue, surgeon-in-chief at Jewish Hospital, and Dr. Cary Presant, medical oncologist and hematologist, also participated in the program at which Mrs. Bayh was the featured speaker.

Of her experience, Mrs. Bayh continued, "The quality of life after surgery becomes more important. The first thing you have to accept is the fact that you've had cancer, and secondly, that you'll be going through life without a little part of your body."

It's a tremendous adjustment and Mrs. Bayh credits Reach to Recovery for enlightening her to the mental and physical means of coping with the trauma which accompanies the surgical removal of a breast.

Reach to Recovery, which is part of the American Cancer Society, is an international program made up of volunteers who have had mastectomies and who, at the physician's request, visit mastectomy patients to offer encouragement.

Since her own recovery, Mrs. Bayh has herself been a volunteer and has traveled extensively for the Cancer Society in an attempt to educate the women of America about breast cancer.

"One of every 15 women is a breast cancer victim," noted Mrs. Bayh, "but we've made great strides -- one out of every three can be saved if properly diagnosed and treated. However, we are losing far more because we women are negligent.

"Even with all the information and recent publicity, women still don't examine themselves once a month. Others are afraid to mention a lump they do discover."

Mrs. Bayh termed this "ridiculous" since 70 per cent of those tumors biopsied prove to be nonmalignant.

"There are 1.5 million cured cancer patients in the United States. What we need is a great education job; we need to spread knowledge, facts, statistics."

In noting the many cancer research projects which have gone unfunded, Mrs. Bayh urged the audience to write their representatives. "Too many have been apathetic. Major cancer will strike one in four Americans. It is an epidemic," she stressed.

"Let us work so we can pass on to future generations a world free from the curse of cancer," she concluded.

Speaking briefly on diagnosis and surgical treatment of breast cancer, Dr. Baue noted the three main diagnostic tests which suggest the presence of a tumor: thermography, mammography and zero radiography. "There is no information available that confirms that a woman should have one of these tests every six months or every year," Dr. Baue said. "Now we must rely on self-examination and examination by a doctor, with confirmation finally established by a biopsy."

There are three types of breast lesions, explained Dr. Baue, a localized tumor, a tumor which has extended into the lymph nodes and a tumor which has spread elsewhere.

"There is no way to determine which of these we have, so we must approach the disease process as if it were in either of these categories." Dr. Baue believes the radical mastectomy to be the proper and safest course.

What does the future hold? According to Dr. Baue, "Surgery probably won't be extended, so we will look to other areas which are very exciting."

Included in these other areas of treatment for breast cancer are chemotherapy and immunotherapy. Dr. Cary Presant, director of the Hospital's oncology clinic, is involved in drug therapy research. He explained that the goals of drug therapy are to increase the rate of cure and to enable people with recurrences to live more active lives.

This public service program was coordinated by Jewish Hospital's Reach to Recovery chairman, Mrs. Joseph Sokolik, and the American Cancer Society. Auxiliary president Mrs. Gunter Schmidt introduced the speakers.
Jewish Hospital is fortunate to have within its ranks many long-time employees who contribute their individual skills with a sense of pride and professionalism. This year, the Hospital recognized 160 of these employees who have distinguished themselves through years of continuous service. Awards are given at five-year intervals.

Two employees received the Meritorious Service Award given annually to one or two employees who have brought credit to the institution through extraordinary service. Mrs. Judi Alpert, Social Work case worker, and Oliver Wever, director of the Biomedical Engineering facility, were honored this year for meritorious service. The award is based on an employee's interpersonal relationships with patients, the community and fellow employees, as well as technical competency.

In presenting these awards, David A. Gee, Hospital president, commended Mrs. Alpert for serving with distinction in her capacity of providing support services for needy and elderly patients. "Mrs. Alpert has been an effective force bringing together complicated patient care problems with community and physician need," he said.

Gee cited Wever's work as providing a crucial and frequently life-saving service in the monitoring and maintenance of sophisticated electronic devices used for patient care. He credited Wever's conscientious and effective behind-the-scenes operations as the reason the electronic safety program was singled out for high commendation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals survey team on their recent visit.

The award is a silver medallion with the recipient's name and the Hospital logo which may be worn at official Hospital functions.

In other award presentations, Mrs. Bessie Henderson of the Hematology Laboratory was recognized for 30 years with Jewish Hospital. Four employees were cited for 25 years: Miss Mary...
Land, Food Service; Mrs. Ernestine Yarbrough, Food Service; Mrs. Leola Taylor, Nursing, and Mrs. Marie Thomas, Central Supply.

Four were recognized for 20 years of service; 15-year awardees totaled 21; ten-year employees numbered 44, and 105 were cited for five years of continuous service.

Mrs. Bella Fendelman, an employee for more than 20 years, served as Master of Ceremonies while David A. Gee presented the awards. A gala reception, replete with a generous offering of tasty treats prepared by the Food Service Department, followed the annual awards program which was held Wednesday, April 16 at the School of Nursing. The Shalom Singers entertained awardees and guests prior to and during the ceremonies.

Four New Members Join 20 Plus Club

The same familiar faces, as well as a few new ones, could be counted as the honored guests turned out for the festive get-together hosted annually by the Hospital. This select group of 42 makes up the membership roster of the 20 Plus Club, and though they represent many diverse areas within the Hospital, they all have one thing in common -- 20 years of service to Jewish Hospital.

The fourth annual 20 Plus Club banquet was held at the Chase Park Plaza Hotel Tuesday, April 15 as a tribute to the dedication of those long-time Hospital associates.

Following the dinner, David A. Gee, Hospital president and club member, presented certificates to two of the four new members along with new identification badges denoting their 20-year affiliation. Mrs. Addie Sanders, Admitting; Mrs. Imogene C. Moore, Heart Station; Jean B. Cineas, Biochemistry Laboratory, and Mrs. Georgia M. Rogers, Laundry, are the newest members of the group.

Gee also unveiled a plaque, listing the 20 Plus Club membership, which will be permanently placed in the employees' cafeteria.

30-year awardee Mrs. Bessie Henderson

The following day, this same group served as hosts and hostesses for the Annual Service Awards Reception at the School of Nursing.
For the recently arrived Russian immigrant Jew, the path toward assimilation into American life is lined with obstacles from the first unfamiliar sound of a new language to all the customs unique to life in the capitalist world.

As one of the first American institutions these New Americans come in contact with, Jewish Hospital plays a vital role from the beginning of the Americanization process. Those Hospital personnel working with the Russian immigrants are attempting to ease the transition and allay their frustrations and fears, as well as to offer help and guidance in medical matters.

St. Louis is one of 66 United States cities which is receiving these immigrants and Jewish Hospital is proud to be among the Jewish community agencies under the auspices of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis involved in this project.

From the moment they step onto St. Louis soil, these New Americans begin the long, difficult resettling process. They're first met by a host family who takes them to the home in which they will begin a new life.

One of the first requisites for all adult immigrants is a medical screening at Jewish Hospital which is arranged by a case worker from the Jewish Family and Children's Service. Children are seen at another facility.

"We prefer the screening to take place as soon as possible after their arrival," says Donald Joos, director of Social Work at Jewish Hospital. At that time, the case worker also arranges an appointment with Joos for a medical-social orientation.

"The orientation is really an introduction to American ways, to our system of medicine and health care. We feel it's very important to acquaint them with our system right away since it seems to be different from what they were used to in Russia. For one thing, there is no waiting to see the doctor in the Soviet Union, which probably will not be the case here. We have to explain that they will have a wait, especially in the clinics," says Joos.

One of the biggest problems is communicating with these New Americans. All of this "talking" is done through an interpreter, of course, whom the Hospital provides. "We have several Russian interpreters; some are our own volunteers in the Shalom program. These volunteers must have a good grasp of Russian; it's very important that there be no misunderstanding, especially concerning Hospital services and procedures they have to follow," says Mrs. Robert Levinsohn, director of Volunteer Services, who works with the New American program.

The New Americans are first seen in the clinic by a doctor who compiles a medical evaluation and then makes recommendations for treatments and referrals to a specific area such as the eye, dental or obstetrics clinic.

The cost of these services is based on the individual's ability to pay. "If they aren't able to pay, we explain that there are funds which are available to cover their expenses now," says Joos. "We also tell them that once they find employment, they must pay for these services and can, if they wish, have private medical care," Joos explains. "In the Soviet Union, of course, all their health needs were provided by the state."

Currently, some monies from the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary Tribute Fund have been designated to assist with outside dental laboratory work, and a fund in the Social Work Department provides transportation for interpreters.

This process may sound simple enough, but it's a well-coordinated, total program which takes a lot of time and effort on the part of many people at Jewish Hospital. Those involved with the program are attempting to make this part of the resettlement process as smooth and problem-free as possible so the New Americans will be free to concentrate on finding jobs to support themselves and learning to live the American way.
Columnist Speaks, Officers Installed At Auxiliary Annual Spring Meeting

"Veeerrrrry interesting" might well sum up the feelings of those who attended the Auxiliary Spring Meeting held April 9 at the Breckenridge Motor Inn, from the president’s annual report through the telltale tidbits offered by guest speaker Maxine Cheshire.

Mrs. Mabel Howell, associate executive director of the Hospital, gave the invocation which opened the luncheon. Mrs. Warner Isaacs, outgoing president, presented the annual report to the membership prior to introducing Lee Liberman, board chairman. Auxiliary officers then presented Liberman with checks from the Auxiliary-operated fund-raising services they represented.

Mrs. Stanley M. Cohen, past president, installed new officers. Mrs. Gunter Schmidt will serve as Auxiliary president for a two-year term. Other new officers are: Mrs. Irving Goldstein, vice president fund-raising services; Mrs. Earl Kessler, financial secretary; Mrs. Robert Wolff, assistant financial secretary; Mrs. D. Bruce Vittert, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Lee Kaufman Jr., assistant corresponding secretary. Mrs. David R. Smith became a director.

Following an introduction by program chairman Mrs. Richard Baizer, Maxine Cheshire, Washington Post columnist, began her impromptu recollections of the Washington political and social "goings-on" she’s been reporting for over ten years. She never uses a prepared speech, she explained, because experience has shown that her audiences prefer the diverse subjects she encounters on the Washington scene.

Offended at being labeled a gossip columnist, Mrs. Cheshire set the record straight at the onset of her presentation, "I am a gossip, but not a gossip columnist."

She then proceeded to recount some of her more noteworthy findings, all previously published, which deal with such luminaries as the Kennedys, Kissingers, Nixons and other familiar names inherent on her beat. When dealing with the delicate subjects with which she is concerned, the Washington Post has a two-source rule for verification, she explained.

Of the crowd of about 250, some were enlightened, some shocked, some amused, but all who attended would have to admit it was a most interesting afternoon.
Associates Install Officers At Annual Meeting

At the Seventh Annual Dinner of The Associates of Jewish Hospital, David Pasternak, long-time member and tireless worker, was installed as president of the organization for the coming year. Other new officers are Ralph Graff, M.D., and Harold Guller, vice presidents; Richard Meyerhardt, secretary; Sidney Jick, M.D., treasurer.

Associates who were newly elected to the board of directors include Mrs. Teel Ackerman, William Stix Friedman, Mrs. Donald Gallop, Mrs. Jerome Goodman, Mrs. Jerry Hirsch, Mrs. Sherman LeMaster, Arnold Schrier, Mrs. Joseph Sokolik and Mrs. Harold Yalem.

Following the installation of new officers, Dr. Norman Orgel was presented a gift of appreciation on behalf of the Associates for his successful tenure as president the past two years. Harold Guller then presented the Associates’ gift to the Hospital. Dr. Robert Kleiger, director of the Heart Station and Graphics Laboratory, accepted a check for $8,000 that will go toward the purchase of an echocardiography machine which is used for early diagnosis of heart disease.

David A. Gee, president of Jewish Hospital, was the featured speaker for the evening. Gee discussed the growth of Jewish Hospital as a progressive medical center for patient care, education and research, along with the key issues confronting the Hospital today as a community institution.

Life Seekers Laud Psychiatry Staff

The Life Seekers, an organization which raises funds for obstetrical pediatric equipment to save newborns, recently recognized five members of the Jewish Hospital Psychiatry Department for their help with the Life Seekers’ A.M.E.N.D. (Aiding a Mother Experiencing Neonatal Death) program.

Dr. Nathan Simon, director of Psychiatry; Jacquelyn Wheeler, M.S.W., A.C.S.W.; Louise M. Cone, M.A.; Katherine Bennett, M.S.S., A.C.S.W., and Elizabeth Mann, M.D., were presented plaques at a Life Seekers luncheon April 17 in appreciation for their work with this volunteer counseling service.

Through the A.M.E.N.D. program, volunteers, who themselves have experienced neonatal death and a subsequent healthy child, visit mothers who are facing the loss of an infant.

The Jewish Hospital staff initially conducted a six-session program to train these volunteers and currently continue to meet monthly with the volunteer counselors for consultation. Referrals for this service are accepted from physicians only.
Volunteers Recognized For Outstanding Service

From a warm welcome smile to the careful tally of a supply order, volunteers go about their business with dedication, competence and enthusiasm. They're very special people at Jewish Hospital because through their efforts the Hospital is better able to serve the community.

Last year, more than 275 volunteers logged a grand total of 61,695 volunteer hours. In appreciation for their exceptional service, Jewish Hospital and the Auxiliary honored these men and women at daily luncheons in conjunction with National Volunteer Week, April 20-26.

Following the luncheons, those who had reached a new plateau in total number of volunteer hours received special recognition pins and bars to be displayed proudly on their volunteer smocks.

Mrs. Ben Samuels, cochairman of the Gift Gallery, was recognized for her outstanding contribution totaling 9,000 volunteer hours. Others cited for their noteworthy accumulated totals were Mrs. Morris Sachar, 14,000 hours; Mrs. Benjamin Rubin, 13,000; Mrs. Jerry Levitt, 11,000; Mrs. Martin Brand, 11,000; Mrs. Carl Goodman, 10,000; Mrs. Esther Schrager, 9,000; Mrs. Alvin Goldstein, 8,000; Herman Landau, 7,000; Miss Della Kurtz, 6,000; Mrs. Hyman Rabushka, 6,000; Mrs. Irving Goldstein, 5,000.
Primary Nursing Workshop Held

Marie Manthey, assistant administrator, United Hospital, Inc., Minneapolis, conducted a day-long workshop on Primary Nursing at Jewish Hospital in April as part of the Nursing Inservice program.

Ms. Manthey was part of the group which conceived and implemented the primary nursing concept at the University of Minnesota Hospitals three years ago.

Primary nursing is a method of patient care which specifies that one R.N., or primary nurse, has the decision-making responsibility for the total care of a certain number of patients. She is responsible for formulating an individual nursing care plan for each patient from admission through discharge, coordinating this care with the physician.

Patient assignments to the primary nurse are based on skills needed by the particular patient. She also maintains direct communication with care-givers, or other members of the nursing staff involved in direct patient care.

Jewish Hospital is experimenting with this new method on one nursing floor. Ms. Manthey was here to present the organizational philosophy and framework that enable hospital nurses to practice primary nursing. The objectives of this workshop were to acquaint the Jewish Hospital nursing staff with the philosophy of decentralized decision-making; to discuss changes in operations that result with this method of patient care, and to define the roles of the primary nurse and the head nurse.

Israel Expo—
A Smashing Success

Jewish Hospital set up and staffed a first-aid station at Israel Expo '75. Charles Carroll of the Emergency Room, along with other Hospital personnel, manned the station throughout the week.

The literally hundreds of people who worked, worried and wondered at the tremendous task they had taken upon themselves in initiating Israel Expo '75 were certainly rewarded with a resounding success for their efforts.

Jewish Hospital is proud to have played a part in this tremendous undertaking which fulfilled every expectation as a cultural and educational celebration of the land and people of Israel.

Dr. M. Norman Orgel made Israel Expo a family affair on Jewish Hospital Volunteer Day as he, his wife, Marjorie, and daughter, Suzy Wahl, visited an exact replica of the Wailing Wall.

Mrs. Ben Samuels, cochairman of the Gift Gallery, center, was honored recently by the Auxiliary for 20 years as a faithful volunteer in the Gift Gallery. In recognition of this accomplishment, a plaque has been placed in the Gift Gallery which cites her "untiring devotion and inspirational leadership." She is flanked by Auxiliary president Mrs. Gunter Schmidt, left, and Mrs. Paul Lux, Gift Gallery cochairman.
Though Doctor's Day has come and gone, the memory of an enjoyable affair lingers on for those who attended the annual event which honors our entire medical staff for their continuous and dedicated services to the Hospital and the community. Doctors and spouses, members of the Board of Directors, Auxiliary, Associates and Hospital administration were seen mixing, mingling and sampling a bountiful array of delicious delicacies prepared by our own Food Services Department.

This year, the Nursing Department added its own bit of color by providing bright yellow mums for all the physicians. During the reception, then Auxiliary president Mrs. Warner Isaacs presented Dr. Jerome Gilden, president of the Medical Staff Association, with a check for $50 to purchase books for the Medical Library on behalf of the Auxiliary.

Pictures are worth more than all the words we could say about the delightful event held in the Brown Group Dining Room March 25.
The Beauty Salon has completed the move to its new location on the first floor of the Kingshighway Pavilion along the north-south corridor. The cheerful and bright orange and white decor beckons patients and visitors to take advantage of this service which is provided by the Hospital Auxiliary. The Beauty Salon is open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday; closed on holidays.

A new addition called Candy Plus, stocked with all kinds of tempting sweets, has opened at the Hospital. The Auxiliary-operated stand is located on the ground floor of the Kingshighway Pavilion, just outside the new Clover Buffet and is open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Pictured, from left, are Mrs. David R. Smith, an Auxiliary director, Mrs. Warner Isaacs, immediate past president, and Mrs. Irwin Sagan, a volunteer.

Mrs. Theresa Stillman, president of the Ben A’Kiba Aid Society, presents a check for $1,000 to Dr. Franz U. Steinberg, director of the Department of Rehabilitation Medicine, at the Ben A’Kiba annual donor luncheon. These funds, designated for the recreational therapy program in Rehabilitation, will enable the Hospital to provide games, refreshments, out-trips, in-hospital movies and other recreational activities for long-term therapy patients. The recreational therapy program is operated entirely through donations.

Five R.N.’s Complete Refresher Program

Nursing Inservice has recently completed a six-week refresher program for inactive registered nurses who have been away from the profession for 15 to 20 years. The five who took the course received exposure in both medical and surgical nursing and the intensive care units. They each received 7.1 continuing education units and will work at Jewish Hospital.
Gifts, Funds, Bequests

The Clifford Willard Gaylord Foundation has again made a generous gift to the Hospital for the Clifford Willard Gaylord School of Nursing Endowment. The income from this fund, which was established in 1970, provides valuable support in the training of nurses. The foundation has also made another contribution to the Hospital’s Expansion Program.

The Alvin Arndt Abramson Scholarship Fund has been established by the St. Louis Section, National Council of Jewish Women. The scholarship fund will be used to aid a student nurse in obtaining her graduate status.

The Cancer Progress Fund has been established for cancer research and is under the direction of Dr. Cary Presant. Jim Reina has made generous contributions to this fund in memory of his son, Richard.

Mrs. Bess Fleishman has established the Max and Bess Fleishman Cancer Research Fund for the study of surgical oncology in the Department of Surgery. The fund is under the direction of Dr. Arthur E. Baue.

The Mary Rankin Jordan and Ettie A. Jordan Charitable Foundation has again made a generous contribution to the Hospital, which will be used for rubella research under the direction of Dr. Harvey Liebhaber.

The Hospital has received a generous bequest from the estate of Jessie D. DeGraw which is designated for the Expansion Program.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Jacobs, Falcon Products, Inc., have generously donated the butcher-block tables located in the new Clover Buffet. The Jacobs’ previously donated the tables for the Brown Group, Inc. Dining Room.

Mrs. Hyman Dobinsky, president of the Noshim Rachmonioth Mothers’ and Babies’ Welfare Society, presents a $1,000 check to Dr. Samuel D. Soule, codirector of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, at the group’s annual donor luncheon. The check will go into the Frances B. Israel Obstetrical Research Fund at the Hospital. The N.R. Society also presented a $2,000 check to Mrs. Benay LaRock, director of Development and Community Relations, as part of the organization’s $10,000 pledge to the Hospital’s Expansion Fund to construct a High-Risk Obstetrical Unit in the renovated delivery room area.

David Nations has been named evening administrator of Jewish Hospital. He was formerly director of Central Supply and administrative assistant for the Operating Room.

As chief administrative officer of the Hospital on the evening shift, Nations will provide support to the supervisors on that shift and will coordinate evening activities.

Nations, who attends the University of Missouri at St. Louis, has been with Jewish Hospital two years. Previously, he was with a hospital management consulting firm.

George J. (Skip) Melloh has been appointed administrative assistant for the Operating Room. A graduate of Southeast Missouri State University, he received a B.S. in interdisciplinary studies. During a four-year stint with the Air Force, he served as a medical service technician and was previously supply and equipment technician at the Hospital.

Tim Sullivan has been named director of Central Supply with responsibilities for all medical supplies and equipment issued to the floors and surgery. Formerly a personnel supervisor, he is currently attending the University of Missouri at St. Louis working toward a degree in business administration.

David A. Gee, president of Jewish Hospital, has been elected to the board of directors of the Hospital Association of Metropolitan St. Louis.

Gertrude West and Samella Butler, operating room technicians, serve as president and treasurer respectively of the local chapter of the Association of Operating Room Technicians (AORT) which recently hosted the Seventh Annual AORT Educational Conference at St. Louis.

Al Ross, chief technician in the Department of Radiology, has received a grant from the Herman M. Meyer Fund for further education in radiologic technique.
The Shopping List

With this issue, we are introducing a special feature which will appear in 216... the Shopping List. The Shopping List will include patient care items needed by the various departments within the Hospital along with their approximate costs. We have instituted this by the request of those who wish to choose a specific gift for the Hospital.

In addition, by publishing these items, we hope to give the community an opportunity to learn about the many varied Hospital needs, both large and small. The generosity of the community to Jewish Hospital through the years can be recounted by the many plaques displayed prominently in virtually every corner of the Hospital in recognition of these gifts.

All contributions to Jewish Hospital, whether monetary gifts or equipment, are equally appreciated and important in enabling the Hospital to better serve the community.
